While I think this book is for most people, the problem is you're not in the right scenario more often than not; I got to this material because at first I wanted to be a reformer then I wanted to be a diplomat and be a part of something or I wanted to be a history teacher a real ambition; your goals will change because of this I now want to go into medical for instance. Don't get me wrong, I still want to stand up for the actual oppressed such as in Iraq however we aren't there for it if that is "heroic" or religious than yes I am but devout I wouldn't say that. What we are led to believe is that people who know nothing about the religion are the most devout of all, this couldn't be more false. I read a study where most of these people who want reform are college graduates believe it or not. Whether you believe text is divinely inspired or not, hopefully this will convince you the Islamic faith is where no one can defeat Islam nor understand how to fight it. If anything is wrong in this book, I promise it will be correct by me though I don't believe much is. What I mean by this is I would be told "you support Iran or Iraq" or "you're promoting Sharia Law", I believe the truth is there but the world doesn't listen. What this book will do to many people regardless of knowledge or faith is anger them so there is no point in explaining it to them, the ones who aren't offended by it will stop responding after a few sentences. For the believers if they were to ever read this who live in Iraq or Syria, this will just anger them more and more that no one cares nowhere in scripture does it explain why this took me seven years of my free time but should only take people four if that you would think these people who want to always be right only to condemn others would bother to care about someone besides themselves but no to be honest I enjoyed researching some of this. Part of me says Islam is divinely inspired because America attacks Syria so now it is your problem world to audit every Mosque in every country. What you do with this that's fine; as we already know when you respond to people heckling or post comments on their pages, what you're doing is fueling them, they won't say "I'm going to stop protesting a Mosque" since they won't convert, they will respond with "you have bad women's rights" and they will attack the Islamic faith. It matters not what the name of the country is being attack, what Abrahamic faith it is, who is winning these wars, if it is "Islam" vs. Islam, or what the text says. It is also a war on humanity, I believe we have a switch it is on or off, by misleading people and distorting religion they then shut that switch off for people. It matters not which religion had the highest death total or which media has the most influence since I will get into what their tactics are I can promise you what they do does not work; by publishing this I'm on the hate list in many categories. Not only is this book anti-Semitic, it is also anti Catholicism, anti Freemason, disrespectful to non Abrahamic faiths, anti west, and islamophobic. There aren't words for how infuriating it is that people will dismiss this because it is about Islam therefore I have no credibility in their eyes but someone like Joe Rogan or Joel Osteen can get all of this attention it just shows how this is what humans want with all of this freedom meanwhile people must die because the public is so stupid. This is the best I can do to prevent the earth from ending, getting these labels on top of people calling me arrogant proves to me that it will if the world read this book, people of all faiths would begin to really hate each other, by me not being your friend, that means I'm in a cult for explaining what is on the news and how scripture applies it is a lose lose. History will continue to produce the same people the same liars ruling the same groups not much would change over 5000 years with only a few new countries to be invaded by them. I promise you this is the complete message though it no doubt could be written better. I have also concluded whoever wrote these scriptures does not want you to pick it up or at least don't get involved with what goes on in the Middle East there are many examples of this which you can talk to me in person about to me it is obvious enough when Saudi Arabia is the "capital of Islam" but was created by Donmeh Jews, how it says don't befriend the Jews and Christians they must pay the Jizyah in the Quran verses 5:51 and 9:29, why there is Sunni and Shia, how the left loves Islam, how colonialisms failure prevented Christianity in Buddhist countries, how women get stoned for adultery but men do not, Sharia Law is dangerous yet several people on the internet say it is a joke, how Islam is an enemy of the West, why women wear hijabs, how only Iranians and Chinese know all of history, how Muslims reject democracy when most in the west believe it is beneficial, ten day marriage contracts, how America's leaders get worse every four years, or how there are apostasy laws which I cannot understand unless it is there to get us to clash a serious revolution which I outline in the book Islam has no place in the West whoever wrote the text might dupe the public but not us real Muslims who think outside of the box humanity is losing a war to I don't know what religion seems not like a cause anymore. Worst of all before someone gets seriously offended by this, what comes to mind if I tell a child he or she looks like a Muslim? It has to be that way where if you are a Christian you are a righteous man if you're a Muslim you are an awful human being so if you saw past the trap of people ruining Islam, they being the West will not give you your rights nor teach history they will continue to scheme against Allah. All of this is a giant error, consequence, or can be explained by Richard Dawkins. Ironically Judaism and Islam are the same religions so I would have picked Islam up anyways, you are allowed to convert the point is people switch between Christianity and Islam this is not an accident it is dependent on your character and your scenario is what I'm saying it is the individual how do they feel personally in a sense one is neither right nor wrong but it happens that Islam is correct but this is irrelevant speech. The point here being Islam doesn't want us to pick it up, I will know there is only one alternative and it just so happens these people also bury the historical books. I'm a philosopher on top of the fact I picked up how in Iran they are making people geniuses for simply accepting these principles so whoever wrote the text isn't fooling me you people don't know how bad America really is Islam has no place here we shouldn't just dump intellectuals along with people who don't care at all, or do care but don't ask enough questions to life. What people don't know is that this is your resume, take for example the Syrian War, did you support the Syrian Army or did you support the FSA? What was your cause? All of this is getting written down. Here's a real hint, the freemasons do far too much damage in countries like Yemen so they have to warn them do not do too much to innocent people to have some mercy, these people don't have any rules to anything they will destroy anything leaving no survivors. There is so much material I'm not going to put in this book but I will remind you that there is so much evil on this earth, I could write another separate book about how the bad will go up and up.

If you had told me I would write a book back in high school or college I would never believe you a lot of people I meet have short conversations and now I see why this is a believers prison where we are smarter than everyone else. What I find more amazing is that someone like myself played videogames all day, now people spend all day on their smart phones and instagram all day I ponder what is the point of life? I'm now convinced God needs our support if not people cannot accept hardships in life well I would certainly think the world will end. If that isn't enough to grasp, 1.8 billion people have to accept that a man gets 72 virgins in heaven, they cannot just get angry or defensive about it along with delivering a book that calls non Muslims arrogant it simply won't last this is separate my last sentence but you have to play the game and then Allah will grant you whatever you wish for, you cannot opt out or else the world will end. I understand completely where you are coming from that yes you do dislike doing this on top of people pushing material on your face but that is the deal. You people can't understand that when I went to a church I saw an 8 year old girl I think with her father, she was nice to me being playful and he was not very talkative, if I teach this to her as a thank you for going to a mass you'd rather not be at and she gets hurt I am liable! What may seem funny at first to be hated by much of the earth isn't. There aren't even words for how much it bothers me that someone's daughter converts to Islam and shares it on facebook, well if I am that girl's friend I will be nasty to her and not talk any more but everything is a joke on this earth until someone gets hurt. This is about us, this is part why I think the earth will fail, I didn't mean to mention the 72 virgins but only to say that look there are many elements and meanwhile if the burden is too much for Syrians, the world will end loss of hope may not be it where these people need to pray. To go from special ed classes to thinking I'm black in high school to this and man all I wanted to ever do is fit in not saying this isn't bad but is it what I intended for? Granted I will take the knowledge any day but in America all we get is basic education without anything of value, we being people who attend public schools don't get a choice any too many of them are ending up depressed because of too much drugs playing with fire essentially, the same applies to money in any country perhaps another case that God exists, I wouldn't have played with fire if given the choice nor would I have bore in wedlock I won't provide every detail about me but you needed to know that. To have to accept that God is liable for people, if I or someone I had voted for ran a country? Don't forget the Muslims who are rushed all of these answers to life but do not know how it applies that yes you have jealousy but do not know how it applies that yes you want to be a president of Jordan for instance and Islam teaches you this is normal to be jealous of finishing second or why you have to cover up your shoulders ladies that us men look too much but you do not know reading the Quran and hadith's this only I teach this. For the rest of us, God or rather His angels keeps tabs on you God follows you; God knows every detail of James Cockroft the historian, philosopher in college for example I'm white, vote conservative, and extremely crude and sarcastic with humor and honesty though I'm working on growing up, it is already predetermined so when I say there will be another one I know there will be not because of God's existence but because they baptize people and hope for the best I however happen to be a very rare human. These angels know details about you and I that we do not yet know at that age in life, a secret is Aisha yelled at Muhammad once, Muhammad would know that would happen God would tell him absolutely I wasn't there for it but I can almost confirm it Gabriel would certainly know. Here is a real secret you won't find in any book, you want the world to work, you don't want it to be a fight for survival and cannot promote a message like this that yes the world works that way but we children of God try not to use those words. It seems like that to me where we are all fighting to be the best in life, get back at haters, or be the best we can be all of which does not appeal to someone who doesn't want to try in life, to me it is taxing because it doesn't change reality that yes someone will be robbed a shot at life. They angels again already know you Jimmy Cockroft is too critical of God and will not reproduce; you Jimmy believe you own life so long as you give back something. I truly want to live, but if you want to opt out you go right ahead overseas and die, I don't think a God wants that at all knowing that you and I will do what God wants anyways after reading the Muslim faith where you must love me to enter Heaven no one bothered to read this but me. There used to be hope, a vision for the earth now it is all reality from me people are right that all of the vigor just dies in us at some age and when you read this book you will know my stance that someday religion won't satisfy us where being a Prophet or a country leader means nothing to the majority all this book is going to do is make you see the bad in life which is exactly what religion tries to prevent, to make us happy and hopeful this isn't to say I hate others infact I foster nothing against them but that I have the lowest expectations for our future. Upbringings, wanting to make the world a better place, wanting revenge, wanting to always be correct, being inspired, these people will always exist. Whenever people say "good is losing", good always has a face; someone will always do the right thing despite most of the world falling to evil. I reference many people by name; the point is that the intellectuals and caring people are in Islam, that doesn't change the fact that Islam gets exported either correctly or not. We can infer that the "Islamic" countries that I have listed will not be overthrown maybe one if that. Though the whole world wouldn't embrace Islam, they would certainly not tolerate these countries starting insurgencies claiming Islam in countries like Syria and Iraq. We also get false scholars and people running for office in the west claiming Islam. That we can talk about for hours in person about how humans will not pick up on this material in masses; then we would start running the world regardless of faith. Do you think as a Muslim I'm trying to impose the religion on people or instead try to overthrow corrupt governments that lie to us? Suppose these governments were overthrown, then everyone on the earth would be made into a genius by me, I care not Hindu, atheist, polytheist etc they are just not allowed in the Islamic countries. It is factual that I am trying to divide up countries but it is best. Would you rather bow to these people who love you because you are doing what they want? Infact I told you to nothing I am not using you as my slave I don't misuse the power I would have, these popes and presidents act like they own you all to lure them into their cult or country. The western world moreover does not use critical thinking, they go based on our emotions forget scripture; this has been abandoned since the early 2000's in my view. There is no antidote to getting good to win on the earth; this is where we are at. We've discovered that these "oppressive" and "aggressive" regimes aren't at all; there are too many problems and concerns for one earth. What I'm trying to say is Iran, Iraq, Syria, Yemen are Islamic, but if you support them, you convert to Islam or are Christian/Jewish at the end of the day it doesn't correct anything which ties into End Times. I would know about this because if the USA was Islamic with Mecca as their Holy Land, if these people were also Islamic, there would be no division in faith outside of a Hindu vs. Muslim, there would be no land for them to conquer such as Syria. Islam is my favorite religion or subject that I will talk about all day where countries full of Christians in Europe are meant to hate Islam. Sadly, these people have gotten too smart; it is no longer an us vs. them when they now use the Islamic faith. We must keep in minds that our Lord has planned for them in these wars; you will get that sense that Islam cannot be beaten. They don't know what good is, good is care and charity, not engineering people to think, this also includes the fact they do not one of these practices given to us such as fasting during Ramadan. Thankfully, people like me will always be on the earth, part of this is me not caring if Muhammad is a Prophet or what we are instructed to do if someone leaves the faith; this is the voice of "good" so to speak. We know they are not right if whole countries are required to recite the Quran at a young age. Upon studying history, it is not possible for any country to micromanage the earth. Unfortunately those with the most knowledge in many of these countries misuse it to oppress others abroad. What makes this worse is by publishing this book; it only strengthens those who don't agree with Palestinians owning Jerusalem's capital, or those who believe Muslims are oppressors for the jiyzah tax, people who want "religious freedom", the list goes on. This book is to reach to those who are neutral in all of this; it is also a reminder for those who already know what is going on in the Middle East, I thank you for reading my book. Before I begin, I'd like to personally thank Author Kamal Salibi, President Bashar Al Assad, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Representative James Traficant, and Author Richard Cassaro, without them this book is not possible, without their information or books my brain would not develop enough the cause of good is what is best instead of accepting your religious center or TV lying to you. I hope you see that people are grateful for life and that God needs heroes the list would go on and on, it is difficult to believe there is good and evil in a world where innocent people are robbed life, where we can't fight what we can't control to quote Ecclesiastes, it is easier to blame what books and history will show us time and time again; is anyone shocked that crime still happens in this day in age? In Islam they teach you how think maybe that is why or heck look at college where anything goes. You have to believe me that a Deity plans this entire out and decides who wins and who loses these wars where good emerges etc. We are born into an earth where we always believe good wins not seeing the damage done in Syria whether Bashar Al-Assad is an evil dictator or not. You have to bear with me that life was all written down between world wars one and two and Zionism, the first two wars to show the world was capable of such events and Zionism being necessary for eschatology purposes. There was a purpose for us humans to get to an end goal, if not than Islam is a lie. Had these three events not have happened I would not believe on it. A bit of a helper is that every important revolution and every important event had happened in a Christian or Muslim population countries outside of the creation of India and the Vietnam War. Many factors have to take place for the world to end all at once, I outline these factors. You have to believe me too that all of these people are liars, I haven't read the amount of books they have but I know the smarter you are the more difficult it becomes to deny the Bible or the Quran it certainly isn't the other way around. I also ask you why these hadith's are very specific on what Allah wants such as Jews and Christians expelled from the Arabian Peninsula. Notice how in scripture they write all of this material out about all of these prophecies, maybe they are trying to say the world isn't good or is rebellious probably to warn us that people will always believe Islam is trying to conquer the earth and that good isn't free on this earth, we believe evil will conquer good on the earth. Suppose we were not sinful like how scripture claims, we can fact check if Muhammad was pure by thinking about what he did and did not do. You're supposed to believe either religion is lying or controlling you, there would be no point if all knew better to fact check it because it says "word of God" in it than it must be false you may not be blown away by it, but that is the deal. People forget humans were animals before faith in some parts of the world where people are illiterate humans need some form of thought and scripture is it for most of the world so the next time I read someone saying that I am indoctrinated I will take offense I'm not a clown. Or how we are in the middle of wars in the Syria and Iraq but this still has to be taught in America if you're not convinced we Muslims are right when Islam has no place in America but it has to be here anyways. I'm not saying Muslims aren't welcome infact I welcome them with open arms this country is a joke anyways it is the opposite it is that we are in the middle of disagreement of how our countries should be run so Islam better be right where American's shouldn't have our religion since they will not pick a side in these conflicts but I can't judge how our Lord chooses people here in the west see how Islam isn't something to get involved in? Another point I'd like to make is they load the children up with scripture to defend them against slander and hate that people will harass them by their teens read historical books we have never seen religious schools like this before ever where everyone is required to know the whole religion. If there were not an influx of children in them, we know Mosque attacks would increase so high we'd enter a civil war in America when children never knew what praying was or spent time at a Mosque. One thing no one seems to notice Muhammad made sure not one of his companions was touched by criticism. If we humans read enough books we will know a God exists without any scripture, this I believe on without a doubt. I hate this book because there is too much material in it, I know you will get enough but then it is on to the next thing that's why I have facebook posts which summarizes what is important. Everything has a purpose on this earth I believe and in 50 or so years we will see how this will all begin to collapse. Also history served its purpose and it will be done, that is believable to me since we cannot do things again like the NOI or the construction of Saudi Arabia, we just do history again but I'm not God or a Prophet I just read and then think things through perhaps the world wasn't intended for many repeats of the same. I want to put in one final note that in this book no Muslim imam will know why Jesus will return in a final fight, if I'm living in Saudi Arabia I don't know how or why things will get worse or what will cause the world to end. Much of what I write is theories and explanations since I know us humans will not be able to handle what is to come it is so serious a book cannot do it justice. This is my best effort to get the message across; unfortunately I can't word it properly so all I can do is inform you on what is happening and why I believe scripture was written.

Chapter 1:

More and more countries are picking up on this material so we're not alone, this is written by an American so that is beneficial to you I believe each country or at least each person speaks different so here's an easier way to understand the message. Personally I don't believe it matters since more people are going their own direction with their faith to turn to occultism or polytheism even after reading material like this with me providing good explanations between scripture and logic for all of the false religions, shucks! We can live the most boring lives ever, at least we are doing the correct thing and thankfully no books are banned I'd rather that than all this "freedom" we have, the west is embarrassing as far as knowledge and religion goes. As far as Sharia Law goes, I'm as strict as they can get but I can never judge our Lord since there would be no point in faith or a test since everyone would be sinless with no division at all. I don't need statistics they know Britain is a disaster by me telling them they are only more convinced that the world should end. The majority want to make the world a better place, somehow the minority always runs it; the same generations will make the same mistakes this happens in any religion any upbringing or they recruit new people. It must be embarrassing to watch how people in their 20s to 40's people still don't get it that they are not qualified to teach religion we see that time and time again in the west if that isn't bad enough, I have to censor Donald Trump's twitter as if I'm some guy who wants to prevent people from living life no wonder why humans are getting more rebellious, logic only works on me because I truly believe I'm being cheated all the time maybe not 100% but too much. Or how I bring up where laws in the Old Testament and practices in the Quran are meant to be disavowed by western media how in the Quran it tells us that these people simply don't listen we are all just idiots according to them sadly it is them not us who can't rationalize why each scripture, house of worship is different from one another. We lose all of the debates, women being worth half a testimony of a man doesn't hold up in the west everything is treated as barbaric and out of date but what we have in America isn't right those who are just would beg for Sharia Law. Also how we are taught that Allah is the best of judges so we don't think we have better morality than our Lord since everyone claims "God's Chosen" so we are taught what happens with people who were wrong on top of the lessons being taught by each of the Prophets to me Muhammad seems like a Prophet but not to America, the New Testament teaches them all the freedom they could ever want. Most people who are religious or not are in their own life, it would take too much to inform them, make them care, and fix their minds. A great example of this is how religious people feel shame for what they own, if everyone had a good financial standing, there would be no point. Religions aren't teaching this, people will not pick up, the majority won't care, or people will forget later on one of these is responsible for this outcome. You could have the best of intent, even if you won in a country like Canada after years of informing people through schools, the material would slowly fade away, most people don't want to teach religion in schools so that won't work. They don't see countries decaying with the effects that has on humans or when countries populations all hate each other. More falsehood spreads and more deceit happen, plenty of people in the middle east will think what I'm saying is political when it's not. The goal of these people is to create it here in the West and export it, if that sound like a conspiracy theory, this isn't for you. For the rest of us, this isn't our fight, I can't teach people to care or explain the dangers of what is being promoted at religious institutions. Look at all of the books and fact checking that is required to read beforehand. Much of this is work; we humans don't want to do 100% of it. There's another flaw in us where we get lazy and don't fact check. More and more Muslims will become wahhabi's and salafi's as it will replace what was the "old Islam", humans will not read historical books to fact check this. For some reason the world keeps messing itself up throughout all of history with Prophets and now the whole countries like Saudi Arabia with their "religious police", people don't notice this for some reason? Do you think they'd embrace Prophet Moses? They live for wahhabism, not knowledge if that is Islam then I want no part of it. If you're unsure if Islam is correct, consider what this book would do to a country like Qatar where a monarchy runs it when monarchies aren't allowed in Islam, it only helps the case that the Devil is out there hiding in our Lord's religions. The citizens don't know about a "third temple" plot or why countries are at war. There is a Devil out there and there are Angels fighting with the Devil. Gabriel cannot tell us that Islam is correct to the whole earth or else everyone would be outraged, they cannot tell us people hide in Abrahamic faiths wanting the "third temple" that the Devil wants, the countries as already listed will continue to lie and lie while concealing what they want. Why else would Abrahamic faiths teach of a physical Devil? The question is not do you believe in Islam or Christianity, which Prophet is your favorite, if Sunni or Shia is correct, or which your favorite scripture is. The question is will you listen or not to Palestinians being forced from their land without reason? Both sides claim "this is what God wants", one of them is going to be right, and one of them is going to be wrong. The fact that the Talmudists, Catholics, and Freemasons go in hiding, separate Church from state, give freedom of religion, poll as the least religious, consistently lie, and constantly claim victim only helps show which side to support. If I can make this as simple as possible, there are now truthful and deceitful people. The truthful people will always answer your questions and will give you the right answers though you may not like them. To tie religion into it, Prophet Muhammad said it is a believer's prison and a disbeliever's paradise. Does it seem believable now that many countries don't get it, these countries are not heroes we are portrayed? Now we know why the world is at war, this is where we are at in the earth where we are given every possible explanation for what is happening, even why Hell exists. To put things into perspective, National Socialist Germany had around 79 million people, Islam has 1.8 billion followers, it cannot be beat; I don't need a Quran to explain that to me. The real message here is Germany was made by man; Islam was made by God since we now believe. Speaking against "Islam" does no good, I can understand speaking against Iran but with Islam I cannot possibly understand what they think the result will be. I'm aware there are only so many countries but America can't afford an all war with Iran. They can do invasions but how they plan to overthrown a government with 65 million people without the Soviet Union or with the whole world at war like in WWI? What would the draft have? Nerd's, college liberals, car salesmen, people who are obese? They care so much about our "freedom" they don't realize the cost of it nor do they realize that no country can possibly invade America and steal our "freedom". They don't stop to think the Nile to the Euphrates is not possible since they have to take out Iran, I don't know our budget but I don't believe America can afford this "liberation". They cannot use Islam to invade Iran, so instead they paint Islam as evil, which does nothing. To quote Donald Trump "I think Islam hates us", what exactly did that accomplish? Why exactly would America bring Islam in the first place? I can't put in words how pathetic this is, "us" means both Americans and Christians; suppose Muhammad waged war on Christians there would be tragedies in the Middle East daily. So which "us" is it? We won't talk about the peace treaties with Christians that Muhammad had, it always cuts short. The president does not have to talk about each of the events that took place during the life of Muhammad but someone in his team has to if you are implying that the religion is inherently hateful as if it isn't obvious enough whoever runs America thinks we are idiots. How ridiculous is it you have to go on the internet and research the history of Islam in a time when they can teach Islam? Donald recently had a ban on 6 Islamic countries, all of which he is attacking. In Romans 12:18 it says to be at peace with everyone which is now all but Muslims for America, Donald is great to all other religions just one short, I think America hates us. If Trump is all about justice what does that make the Islamic world, backwards? We are all senseless animals according to him. The comment he made is so stupid not because he does oil deals with Saudi Arabia but because he helps Saudi Arabia in wars, how is his team capable of having dialogue with such people who aren't capable of thought at all? In Islam we are taught to study all world religions. I know what Trump meant; the point I'm trying to make is everything these politicians say is stupid and gets America nowhere. This is all by design where if Americans were taught religion and what is happening on the earth they would end out believing on it. One must wonder do they have a plan beforehand when they tell these presidents what to say? That's a flaw in America where they mix both what we think is Christianity with "make America great again", the liberals don't want religion at all in the white house, to me that's fine but don't mix both. If this is an independent nation why would they ever do both? I can't get upset at Donald because a new president will have a new view and Donald keeps flip flopping, I can't get upset over it because it had no point, in another clip he said he has no problem with Muslims so we know this was an attack against Iran. They keep doing what the public wants, both dislike and like towards certain beliefs. You don't need to put much thought into this that people hate Islam and when the Middle East chants "death to America" I don't think the message will come across well all while in scripture we are warned of a Final Day. I doubt America or Americans will want peace with the religion they don't want thinking we are trying to overthrow them. What stands out about Islam is that the citizens run Islam, not the governments; where else do we see this on the earth? What I can't understand is why people blame the religion of Islam for people dying, this is very tragic but they can't seem to rationalize why this happens that yes we have to teach Islam evil exists, they will claim Islam humans have sunk to a new low to win wars. This is the truth, this is not a bias had people have bothered to read how enemies of Islam are sent to Hell immediately upon their deaths; they may end out believing the religion instead they are radicalized, how else could someone do such a thing? We have little influence, we are the "bad guys" so to speak, I "believe" it is all truth and lies just wait till they get a hold on Islam. If you notice with all of these groups fighting in Syria, they are all very smart college educated people, isn't it believable they got bored with life? It can't be a just cause because people want Bash Al Assad, Syria could be wrong about Islam, but does that mean people have to defect? I'm not buying that they are fighting for Islam either; do they have to do this? Some people don't know better but they do. If Bashar wasn't an evil dictator like CNN says, I would probably believe them that Islam has problems with deciding if a country should be secular or not where they give you your own Sharia law to live under, how ridiculous is that where people think it is needed in all of Syria? We know it isn't for power either; the odds of dying are far too high. Do you think they are narcissistic people bent on killing others? I sure don't, all of them had a good upbringing, they won't put their lives on the line just to kill others so what else could it be? It has been and will always be the same people funding these moderate or not moderate rebel groups in Syria or wherever the next war is, it will be the same speech that these future leaders will give I have this magical ability where I know what they are going to say whatever name this future group has. These people they recruit will always come who don't know religion or don't know their cause, with communist/capitalist groups the same thing had happened to a much larger extent so we can never blame any religion for this where people in their 20's and 30's are duped there is no difference between religion and communism/capitalism I believe

I'm correct about this since let's suppose Islam and Daesh were the same ideology, why is no one fighting for Daesh in Syria knowing the Syrians are wrong? Wouldn't a ballot box resolve this? Islam and Daesh could be the same ideology, but I guess the 99.99% of Muslims are wrong see how ridiculous this comment is? These people know Daesh has no part of Islam I hate to compare it to communism since Islam is a religion but people will always try to recruit others for a political cause, Daesh isn't religious, it is political. If it were religious based, these fighters don't have to fight all of these wars all they need is a small community. It is all just a high, there were plenty of reports that the people who lived under it hate it no surprise to me what did they expect? I can't put in words how illogical it is to kill someone in the name of a cause when it doesn't end poverty, this happens all the time in any religion. Were there instances where revolutions are justified? Yes but there are only a very few throughout history. Everyday people will blame the Islamic faith which I think the most absurd thing ever; we don't know motive for every individual heck most didn't even know why Syrian rebels fought. Please avoid me if you really believe that. Did we not forget that Muslims die in these wars too? The people who criticize Islam want you to believe that news would be censored though they themselves don't believe it, for humanities sake let's hope my interpretation of Islam is correct when 1.6 billion people are Muslim. Our brains think it is all political that Islam wants to dominate or that a Muslim has never died since Yazidis and Christians are the targets in Iraq, it has to be the religion not lack of employment. In Islam we are taught you have to die a Muslim maybe now you know why, we are all educated and know what is going on that they all work for Israel all of Syria knows something isn't right when Bashar tells them that these groups are going to Hell. Bashar wins all of the elections with 88% of votes, it wasn't fair according to United States and the United Kingdom, if these two countries are lying which I believe they are then see how pathetic this has become. We know about the Talmudist scripture, we see our countries are going through hiccups but we our leaders won't surrender anyways knowing there are 7 layers of Paradise as if we aren't aware the two religions could not be more opposite and we fact check ours knowing the world is getting far worse every 30 or so years which indicates it will collapse we doubt peace will reign by building this "third" temple. In Islam we have to keep brushing everything aside what will happen where people have no clue about what they are talking about what other religion preaches a message like this? People hate their countries, you have to be religious because that means you are a critic of what is around you, it means you hate everything instead of tolerate it, it will be interesting to see how the Prophets would run America so if you don't like life you will go to Hell since nothing will ever improve, people constantly feel like they have to justify the practices in religion, try to view it from a different perspective of do what we want don't ask questions think the way we think or else. Since in religion they don't provide us with answers you will get my explanations just because it says ask questions in religion doesn't mean we will get the conclusions we wanted. You were given life solely to be judged, that to me is believable since life is whatever and if you didn't pray, you don't think a certain way, you supported killing Yemen children for your cause, you don't wish religion on all of mankind, you lose no discrimination whatsoever you may like the person other people didn't for good reasons. Granted these are different extremes, but so is Paradise and Hell, putting the pieces together where throughout history many of all backgrounds went to Hell their good ethics sure didn't save them. It is in the Quran that most are not grateful for life now we know why if scripture was worded this way everyone would believe, it might be repetitive but if it were a dream life wouldn't everyone do it? Don't sacrifice your religion for anything it says that also in the Quran you were warned. Religion is a message that's it; as far as the earth goes it has to run. All I needed was one verse, Final Day I could care less if the Quran was altered thousands of times or if there were so many contradictions in hadith's. What are we doing on this earth? Pray, fast, etc next group of people who read every verse but this one I never see it posted on the internet, now religion has become perhaps words can't describe how it was meant for culture hence why we talk to the elderly now it is about obedience then media has it where they all want your time. I realized over time the same could be said about any war, I don't mean to sound like a hippie or better yet a smart aleck but what do wars resolve? Do they end unemployment? Was there ever a war that ended all wars? Or was there a protest to end all protests in America? I guess it isn't my job to question how the world should function when every countries leaders has the best of intent we will never know the results before it is too late and out comes another war we all be it president ayatollah or sheik in a country believe we are God's Chosen. It shows how lost the freemasons and Zionists are when they plan these wars as if they are Prophets that can foresee the future just because it is in a holy book of the Nile to the Euphrates it means nothing, I can never say it can't be done but at the same time I don't have any reason to believe it is possible since someone running a country like Turkey will ruin it. Much of this book is as blunt as it can get, to me life is a show if we can't even fix the burqa. There is no progress in religion or humans, religion owns the purpose of life; the same people are going to be wrong and will always dominate religion. The earth is now for people believe who believe it should cater to them because it doesn't do what they want, it is expected I ruin all of your hopes. Do you notice these problems will never fix? Would there ever be a compliant on the earth?

You will see that everything from WWI to this day is black and white; there are no more Genghis Khans or colonialists; these people want to destroy the earth by attacking them or building their own mosques, churches etc; this is separate from my previous point of nothing being gray from taking anti war stances, it is all for the "third" temple their only goal is to destroy a country and rebuild it the way they see fit. Before you say "oh, those who perpetrate these wars are not part of the Christian or Islamic faith and it is all the Talmudists and freemasons fault", the world is not perfect, people of all faiths hate each other and there are those who think it is ok to harass others that are not of a belief or the wars have divided us all from Christian to Sunni to Shia, my point is this is all a country like Syria has, yet friendships will be lost but to me it still runs fine and it doesn't have to be perfect the last thing a country like Syria could use is America where we all hate each other by the way we vote it really is pick your poison the days of unity are well over but yes almost all of these conflicts in the Middle East are their fault all of these wars we see are perpetrated by them wars and division are still inevitable anywhere at any time but because I point this out, people will believe that I am being biased when I'm not, we can check their intent obviously they are not responsible for every war ever done on the earth but yes 90% of the time in the future it will be perpetrated by them. The reality is they will kill anyone it so happens that people are categorized as Christian or Muslim and not Syrian, Palestinian, or Libyan I'd much rather news be presented as that since Saudi Arabia is at war in Yemen if the doctrine of Islam was to destroy other Muslim countries why isn't Yemen or Syria trying to invade other countries? Then people would begin to realize that humans don't want war. It isn't a stretch to say it is always the same countries invading; yes we humans are the victims of an ideology that seeks to destroy all countries that these people happen to live in. They want you to believe Christianity and Islam is different, if they are separate religions, it doesn't change the fact their targets are anyone now what they do with the faiths is I believe a distraction from the truth. What's wrong with these countries at home? Aren't they all running fine? Or so we think. I don't believe hope is lost for humanity yet, but as far as religion goes they set it up wrong they give us the freedom not to care or read. They blame the "Islamic faith", that's what these people; do who claim Islam to destroy countries there are no politics or the guy running the country is always an evil dictator. This is just "a small minority" who don't understand the faith or so we believe; the reality is very serious where the religion will be distorted by the masses, there will be a gigantic war at whatever time I don't know and it will destroy the earth. If you believe the Islamic faith or any religion is unjust for its history, remember that every day humans do far worse things than anything someone could possibly do in the name of Islam. Forget the massacres, how do you reject the law of life of telling the truth? We can talk about every possible religious genocide people can find, none could compare to such an atrocity of 9/11 where it was done on its own citizens. How Syria, Iraq, and the Islamic Republic of Iran could not be viewed by someone as not Islamic when they give you the faith I have no words for it. We know Islam will be treated as something different since the belief is Norway for instance should be the Islamic Republic of Norway and not Norway, no other religion is treated as such. By me sharing that these Mosques go against the west; that only worsens it knowing Christianity is only a fraction of what is in the Middle East. I guess I'm a "peaceful" Muslim, see how this all can get distorted? Even without the wahhabi's it just would, we just keep playing into their cards with Islam hating the west, and "anti-Semitism" going up. Yes there will be verses of violence yes lands like Syria have to be defended, if peaceful and forgiving verses were in, they may surrender having no will to defend it. If they didn't think it were possible to win, they would quit, they need to believe Zionism is working when it clearly isn't. What they are doing isn't working, but nothing will fix. As we get further into end times, Islam will be treated as something that Christianity can never coexist with Islam without Islam being on top though the historical books has shown bother religions worked side by side in many instances. We know in Islam we are taught to not bother with people of other faiths (as all faiths are taught, I can promise you a Hindu does not want a Christian near a temple, they will throw rocks), once snakes run the Mosques, that's it. It wouldn't matter if Talmudists and Freemasons invaded every country, Islam is a religion, people of other faiths hate Islam, it only makes them look just in doing so usurping the country's wealth, Islam just happens to be in their way in the Middle East. We would have tried to give Hindu's their national freedom in history but then Islam would be treated as something good so instead jihad is talked about daily on the news and other faiths enjoy bringing it up. People who are smart ask why isn't the world Islamic? This point I brought up is the same reason, Islam has to be treated as something incompetent and oppressive when it's the opposite. The history books seem to forget that humans used to love each other and worked together, it wasn't until the 1900s when society went downhill pretty much everywhere do people not know it used to be an honor to be a person of faith? It comes as no surprise that the early followers of each faith would try to expand it see beyond the wars and crucifixions they used to love religion. There was no division of race like today where we are segregated by Church or Mosque nor was there Hell it wasn't perfect but no disagreements like today. There were no arguments no jealously anything life may be more entertaining but is that a good exchange to own a car and have music? These lectures have nothing to do with anything now nor do colleges. If I didn't inform you the reader properly than I am no better than the people I denounce where I am telling you how to think just like them. I wonder if you are a people of any faith how you can take pride in your religion and your country is worse people are beginning to hate them not good the atheists are winning here big time. I would love to get hate thinking this is hysterical but that isn't how religion works we have to brush it aside and try to get along wherever you work you now have a second job. I read people's comments I know exactly what they will say good thing Syria doesn't undergo this, how quickly that country would fall. People are very critical of Islam, what would we replace it with? The earth still won't care enough to protest wars and the same religious centers will still lie about the conflict. I can't understand this where people mock the religion on the internet if you were living in a different era you wouldn't, what you cannot understand is that yes you are smart but people I know are not whether they go to a Catholic school or not they don't read history at all so I'm allowed to believe that the world could end because it was set up this way you don't give it a chance knowing these same religious or not religious schools will produce the same people. People say that Islam hates humanity, you (locals not atheists) hate me, don't ever rant on the internet, I hate you too person who thinks it is ok to lie or really cares about being right instead of people's lives being lost I can't understand some humans at all.

People who criticize Abrahamic faiths cannot understand that at home we cannot execute people for speaking out against human rights abuses which happened in the Soviet Union, scripture is partly to tell such people who they really are no matter who talked them into believing they are doing a just cause. People do what they are supposed to going to work and a country comes along invading them think of how furious Americans would be, somehow Yemen is left out I'm left to believe that they aren't going to get revenge in a Hereafter on those responsible? It isn't that atheism killed all of these innocent people, it is communism that did it; atheism allowed for it, atheism has not killed one person ever. In Abrahamic faiths, communism where people die of hunger or get sent to camps for reporting the news is never allowed so whatever people say about Islam not being fun or that it is strict; remember that we have human rights in it. Communism is fine but genocide isn't. Not everything in scripture is about us and our opinions. Many, many people are going to Hell and I will surely fill Hell with jinn and mankind alike to quote the Quran. Many will be judged, many will fail meaning billions in any country since the Soviet Union with much of Asia are doing atrocious today where they aren't Shinto or Buddhist. Then we have agnostics who may not go to Hell but will get nothing in the Hereafter, it is believable the world will end and that it had a purpose even if the purpose was for charity where we cannot all be rich that was its purpose. I claim everything happens for a reason now that we have the internet and many quit religion or mock it. New people will join and I think I found out why, men are always needed. Men usually don't get married, are in jails, are homosexual, or are not willing to settle down unlike women setting the amount to four wives doesn't solve anything; we need to also factor in how many women feel that their careers must come first. Running the earth is too much of a headache since everyone has to be satisfied in some way if I were a polytheist I wouldn't view it this way but this is all we got is scripture, a community, and brothers and sisters we don't have scared text to tell us everything to do in life or else we would do it. Try to think for a second how big of a slap in the face of it is that Dan Bilzerian has an instagram, I have nothing wrong with photographs but this whole account to make a joke out of the earth I can't understand for the life of me what the purpose of any of this is, what if all of the men were like him? First we have to segregate them and then we have to shut down their instagrams, neither will happen. Everyone hates the 1% too, I learned barely anything in college to me it is just so stupid we get nowhere with any of this I never know if I'm supposed to laugh or be confused. Get this; there are people like me who refuse to have children knowing I will be on welfare welcome to the real world my only concern is prayer in a world that does not cater to us in any way I could never run a Mosque or a Church. If you took away my books I will be furious at you. I don't think people realize how important religion is when people have countless complaints in their lives, people are obese, they are glued to their cell phones etc, they all think they have to live dream lives. I'm not here to criticize either, religion or even atheism doesn't explain to us that life isn't a dream. We can't have that where people want everything perfect or where they do not care. I'm not taking jabs at people; I'm trying to find out what is going so wrong when it will get far worse. I laugh at people who mock Islam, we don't know life we humans didn't invent life. I'm taking the stance that "no, you're dumb", whatever the public gives us is senseless where we would all have Ferraris, getting drunk weekly, and go to the shopping mall every day. Here's an example where we are being dumbed down, religious schools only teach Christianity, why in this day and age are they not being taught Islam, Judaism, Hinduism, or Buddhism? It shows all religions are scared of competition I'm not. It is believable to me that we are all getting rewarded for aspiring for peace, reading, and practicing faith was life not intended for that? Do you ever hear of pious rich people? I don't, every country has these people doesn't matter if they dress religious or not. Humans with wealth will not do the right thing, I'm not here to condemn or judge. Education systems in any country are horrible I care not if they require people to memorize the Quran by the time someone hits their 30's and 40's it all goes away. Humans are lazy; they don't read it is just the truth it is the same reason why only Iran burned American flags during the U.S. embassy move in New Jerusalem. I can't figure out why humans can't care for one another whole countries of people do not care about you and the ones who know about this only care about being right defeating the purpose of this. So they can sit back and question why boko haram exists not understanding that these people will always exist where they have no cause at all and want to kill people. They can also believe that Judeo Christian values built America, industrialism and capitalism did, I don't think religion played a part in it. Back at home the religion is getting distorted; they won't know fact from opinion because someone wrote in false hadith's. We also have "Make America Great Again", what does that even mean? Does it mean make America restore the economy? I didn't know any president could do that. Are they implying to love your country? We are all programmed; look at who is programming you and why religion has to keep talking you back into it. I guess you can say religion is upfront that we will be judged in a world that tells us how to think instead of educates us. Humans are innocent but the wise; they know what's going on. People say Jesus was a Muslim, you will see how big of a deal that is considering we all pick either Christianity or Islam and both I believe will tank or at least Islam will and in Islam you get a lot of hate.

Most countries on the earth will be overthrown; there will be a Final Day as explained in the Quran. I'm convinced that over a course of 500 years a generation will never come along and protest the wars in the Middle East therefore these wars will not be prevented or delayed. I don't think the citizens are dumb, I think they just forget what is happening around them. I try not to laugh at this but I can almost confirm Muslims are not going to hold up signs everywhere that say we support Yemen. This becomes problematic because most want "Sharia Law" but the right person has to set it up, even without the Wahhabists ruining it, I doubt a true Islamic government would rise in Europe; we seem to forget that "Sharia Law" can be a Christian country but instead the divide of Christianity and Islam widens with Islam being treated as a state within a state. Not that it matters anyways, people don't want stoning for adultery in the west. The problems keep coming up, I didn't intend to tie what I write in with religion but to show that yes these Prophets are correct though we don't know how this will collapse. I can't put in words how scary it is that the Jews have Saudi Arabia the capital of fake Islam where they can export it, we know it won't work in Europe, this is coming from a 25 year old. I can't see the picture, but I get a sense of what is going on. Don't forget these people being the Jews and the Freemasons are convinced of this "third temple" and will stop at nothing to get it. We've already seen what they do back at home where they try to pass abortion and same sex adoption bills in every country. We are overlooking also how the reason for war seems to get less and less convincing for us Americans; it has now come to lying about Bashar Al Assad using chemical weapons. All I'm saying is a population can come along and ruin every possible principle taught in scripture. Where we are at now, this is how the world is to be run with many socialist countries, many populations who do not read and gossip on the TV's instead of knowledge. The protesters are animals, everyone is glued to their smart phones, the debates are over how to run America; the list goes on. I say it one thousand times but it is the truth that scripture is to get us to think, if people aren't doing any, this cannot be replaced at the colleges as they are trying to do. What amazes me the most is that Judaism and Islam are the same religions; suppose someone were Christian and didn't support Muslims wouldn't they support Palestine? Reading the Bible once, you will support Palestine since it has a higher percentage of Christians, Muslims accept Prophet Jesus as their Messiah, and because "Jews killed Jesus". It surprises me that people do not know that Muslims have to give religious protection to Jews and Christians but this is made unaware to the public. Another example where Islam is mistreated is where Islam has many parties that claim Islam and fight in Syria. There were Christian parties in the Lebanon civil war so this could not be prevented if the Middle East were Christian. It is as if any form of knowledge is pushed aside for concepts people don't agree with like how in Islam we cannot draw Prophets. The reality we face isn't that people don't want to hear the truth or that we offending people; it is that people do not want Islam; we look like idiots for some reason, all of the knowledge we have about what is going on in the world is neglected. Never forget the angrier you are, the more its critics win, it isn't about who is right and who is wrong. What would a Prophet have to say about America when we are taught Muhammad is the most important figure in our lives? We seem to overlook why some of these stories are here, imagine if Prophet Muhammad didn't care about you at all or he wasn't a man of justice and he is called the best leader? By me putting my name to religion that at the very least means Muhammad would know what he is doing and is one of the best leaders of all time. Prophet is a title, and it wouldn't shock me if a title like Sheikh meant nothing in the future, this will outrage our Lord. Muhammad was the most charitable man to walk the face of the earth if not the top six with other Prophets such as Jesus ahead of him. He would stop at nothing to answer questions his followers had. Unfortunately, countries are left with kings and queens such as Britain who care nothing about Britain or anyone's best interest but their own, it is believable an elected official will come along that is the worst among people in case if you thought eschatology was a lie. Meanwhile people continue to debate if Islam can be criticized yet it is criticism that guides us to the truth about Prophet

Muhammad and Islam where "a path in search of knowledge guarantees paradise" and "the cure for ignorance is to question". For only 1400 years Islam was not questioned so much for being a "backwards ideology that needs reformation". At first glance you may not believe on Islam or you didn't spend enough time studying it, what you didn't know is all of Europe is Christian but in the Muslim world, Bashar Al Assad is a Muslim, why? These countries are not Christian, they are freemasonic and they would have converted to Islam this is what makes it believable to me since we now know Christianity isn't correct. This is damaging for the earth because they are robbed leaders who actually care about the public and are willing to donate. You would be lead to believe that is Assad's heritage, while this statement is true, it doesn't change the fact that Christianity is wrong so he will not convert to it and not one European country will convert. It is also true that in Lebanon politicians are Christian, the reason behind this is either politics or if they do convert, people get suspicious and they cannot explain how Christianity is wrong. We go back to the argument that there would be no point if the whole world were Muslim, suppose they do teach it in the schools, then Saudi Arabia will end out shutting down the Holy Lands since they control them! They won't allow people to teach they are wrong with their visiting pilgrims. So much is happening on this earth that is out of Syria's or Iran's control, so instead they let it play out. It is also a fact if the internet were invented people would love Islam or at least not be adverse to it what was once a Sunni-Shia divide in Iraq has now hit America and Europe, they won't get their peace and they are not fit for a civil war, they aren't Ukrainians. Too many people want to find faults in others instead of accepting that life may not be a dream so then gossip starts up on top of hatred of people, to be honest I don't think the religious people are the ones who are fit for the earth. It isn't the EDL I'm speaking against, it is Muslims in these countries not accepting that people will hate you, we shouldn't export something people don't want and if we look at the polls in Europe, it is overwhelmingly against Islam where it is being sold as something separate and a nightmare, if people aren't welcoming where one is going to have to embrace the other, of course this is going to fail in Europe. This isn't India where the Muslims go in one section, the Hindus in another. Isn't that the only way of making it work? This is putting into account also that one is gold and one is awful people whereas in India, the two groups let each other be. Suppose Hindus were vile, sick, degrading people, why would I ever want one as a neighbor? That is what is happening in Europe. Is it too much to ask Muslims go here, Christians go here, the rest go here? Or rather this is how it is going to fail. If it were all Jews (Talmudists) running countries than there would be no supporters of Israel, instead they are painted as Holocaust victims, people aren't supposed to know about Freemasons being the other half of running both America and the Soviet Union. The reality being that they both have the same goals, something that is not disputed in any way. If we truly loved our countries, this would never happen. If we were living in Iraq, people wouldn't want more, this goes beyond prayer; prayer isn't enough to satisfy these people. What would have been interesting is if Germany didn't have to surrender in WWII, have their only be Talmudists, Catholics, and Freemasons vs.

Muslims fighting each other with war after war it would never end. There wouldn't be any Boko Haram's where they falsely claim Islam. If anything the Talmudists, Catholics, and Freemasons hate their countries they built, they want them gone. I feel I need to bring this up because I see more and more freemason emblems on the back of people's cars. They have to be cruel and unfair, they can't win on justice at any level be it war or courts. I'd like to add also that people are not that greedy, look at some of these people with their palaces as if it isn't obvious enough the 1% is in the same religious beliefs. One may wonder why so many groups claim Islam, there is evil on the earth, the people behind these groups don't pray, fast, or have care for anyone but themselves. No one is spared from this as Prophet Muhammad taught that the greatest jihad is to battle our own souls, to fight the evil within ourselves. I can promise you these people don't know what they are doing with this and the scholars aren't teaching Islam correctly in a lot of European countries many people despise each other for different views, bringing in Muslims only worsens it, without taking a guess, we know people cannot hate their country at least one country in Europe will suffer from something serious like this to its downfall. These people who are behind the curtain want to win and I don't think they know what they are toying with I'm convinced this will clash where in the Muslim faith, we can declare war on countries, if that is handed over to people who don't know what they are doing, that would be catastrophic. We know it goes back and forth with these "debates" in Britain which are really hatred of one another without a solution or a common ground, they will only get worse; there is no end in sight. People relate the slaws of the countries with the religious people living in it, this is a real problem as the religious people don't understand they don't like you to begin with, even if you avoid them, they claim you're plotting something against them when you're not where you're implementing "Sharia Law". It doesn't help any cause that many countries in Europe are on the brink of defaulting. What is most concerning is that Saudi Arabia is opening their Mosques in Europe, people will be taught to think, feel, and act a certain way. The higher the numbers of trained people to take over Europe will no doubt lead to several civil wars. Suppose wahhabism didn't exist, suppose Europe will not default (I don't know for sure that one), they being the west simply do not know how to run their own country this has nothing to do with religion in that they keep wanting peace and stability yet the citizens hate each other, we've never seen the likes of what is coming. Let's not forget about how easily Boko Haram came about by Western countries funding them. The majority cannot separate between actual terrorists faking to be Islamic through the claims of being Salafi and Wahhabists. If this group was in Europe, it would be disastrous since those who are against Islam won't be able to pick the Salafi's out meanwhile the Muslims will not destroy the Mosques used in Europe where they are improperly used by people who don't understand Sharia Law. One may wonder "why are Muslims doing this to us, we hate them", the reality is the world will never be at peace, without conflicts there would be no difficulty in life. We would all be at peace if Donald Trump tried a peace treaty with Afghanistan. If people in the West wanted war, America would be the first to cater to it. People in the West will always believe that Muslims want war and that Islam isn't democratic which the West enjoys much. More importantly people cherry pick verses they don't like in the Quran, it is believable that a generation will come along that will not abide by any verse. People are questioning material that doesn't need to be challenged. Gabriel and Muhammad knew there would be controversy when there wasn't any for over 1400 years! The same reason people believe Muhammad was a bully to Jews when it isn't true. Why don't you believe they are one step ahead of us when a Freemason ideology exists where you can deny Allah's existence and reject scripture? They knew people would question the women's rights in it. The truth is that there is a verse of wife beating in the Quran; that is exactly what they want you to believe is that the entire Quran is a waste since critics only pick out what they don't like in it. The truth is they don't respect Allah's earth for His cause, you didn't explain to people that God is real on the earth you failed the truth is you didn't care about people you cared about your cause like I did in college with conservatism and political (?) Christianity it takes years before anyone can be considered part of any religion. Suppose you were to leave conservatism for socialism, I might get angry one day, I don't go and look for new conservatives to explain we are correct that is what happens with religion, plenty of people who leave religion will tell you that is what it is where they keep mentioning it by accident. There are days I have to go outside and vent, nothing went wrong that day, I just have to. All religious texts are the same at least Abrahamic faiths I know this is the same with Zionism. It is all becoming political people don't want it, a generation will leave Islam someone called Islam political sorry to say but your religion is the same by promoting atheism you would see that they want no part of it people may hate Islam but they'd hate your freemasonry as well.

Something is going wrong if people keep questioning Islam and wanting to reform it, that being said I cannot conclude this will crash the countries that are Islamic it just seems too obvious to me that a generation might (will) abandon Islam or cannot define the word kafir properly, the Shia's and Sunni's both believe the others are disbelievers soon every denomination could be. We also know that Islam will be treated as something strange since it is believed the Holy Land is in Palestine when Muhammad was in Arabia a religion with three Holy Lands. Grant Muhammad visited a Jerusalem over night but Islam has the least roots in Palestine or so we are led to believe. I believe that the Antichrist will deceive Christians into believing he is the Messiah and will say Jerusalem is their Holy Land along with the Talmudists. I also believe that people who pray daily don't understand that God isn't them; sometimes we are wrong am I right? The majority of people don't see it that way. Another issue I found is that people hate religion; I can't explain it where they leave in their 20's plenty do but most don't to me going to church weekly, Sharia Law is all the same people don't want it. I know this is going to get messed up because in Islam if you are not a Muslim you are evil most will believe that Jews and Christians are not Muslim, Iran is always getting attacked by the west, religion has become political instead of love thy neighbor, and people believe that Islam wants to dominate the world. We know Hell will be taught as a form of revenge when it is not. There are many factors that have to all work at once for a Final Day. Worst of all is taqiyya; this is why not to convert to Islam where you lose all credibility, they will just say he is lying to further a cause when all I'm doing is sharing information. On a side note, taqiyya should have never been added because if your word is no good, no one can trust you, we've all met someone like this so we know the youth will abuse a concept like this not understanding how bad this is for them. I know we are headed nowhere anyways because now we are Muslims instead of Iraqi's or Americans who support no wars, I'm now categorized by a religious belief, that should be a sign towards the end. We know people will leave Islam because it speaks of war rape and Sharia Law is treated as out of date as if we humans need to abandon it, watch Ben Shapiro rip it on the internet I won't name the video but you can find it easily. Agnosticism will rise when people say there is no proof of God's existence despite Mosques everywhere, I referenced this later; people actually have to attend them, we can't just drink and party every week like in Dubai humans will do that. Once all of this "whore of Babylon", antichrist, and flying donkey's stuff is released on the earth, people such as myself will become polytheistic because there is no explanation for it, the answers will not come quick enough. Here's a good example, we humans do not know if the Chinese dragon is a lie or not but we believe in Prophets who referenced flying donkey's and she camel's, of course we can become polytheistic Muhammad will not sit there and explain everything that is happening all at once during the Final Day, suppose he did, would you believe everything he is saying? I might, where I keep insisting there is an explanation for such and such but I know this will happen too fast for many. For those who have no life such as myself; isn't that how atheism came to existence where we religious people keep providing answers we don't have? Shahada means to believe in every principle that yes there are angels out there, it is not your belief in a Final Day, someone I talked to who was not a Muslim said that the world will end but not because of a Prophet living in a desert, and I too could say well yes the world will end because it says to in the Quran, no, you have to believe the Quran is divinely inspired not that it carters to your belief that humanity is headed nowhere that simply believing Muhammad was a good lawmaker is not enough. I also fear with all this knowledge people don't care, we don't know how lucky we really are when we see constantly black people in jails for crimes when they were not taught logic or a good upbringing. This is for the people in Egypt who mock Islam, you make this look bad for everyone; yes, we know the world isn't perfect, the religions get mocked, nothing improves on the earth but what gives you the right to make a joke of the earth? I bring this up because more people say in the Middle East "I'm not happy", what they are really saying is I wish I was not charitable, friendly, and educated which will poison a generation no doubt, it doesn't help that the troops are set with Tomi Lahren and Ben Shapiro to win the media, we are weak, we have no defense at all to counter any of this, someday I may not find but one righteous in all of America just to clarify in their 20's and 30's this is not hate speech against people of faith but to show you how I truly feel that after reading this book you have to do the work for God yet they insist the world will not end. If you look at my facebook it was not what it was intended for where there are only ten posts, the pictures would go on the side as if it isn't obvious enough I misuse it where I need to post hadith's to filter out truth a lot of death threats would be sent to Mosques because of me, I refuse to update my facebook knowing that all knowledge will be censored out so if not me failing at spreading truth we have the TV talk about Islamic history. Don't forget that God is always losing, if this weren't the case, how come people don't want to live in Saudi Arabia? Why do people drink alcohol? There clearly was a plan, but it is failing no one sees this but me, the standards were supposed to be made so low but as I've stated thousands of times people don't want it. Do you want more examples? Everyone loves Fazza on instagram, but he doesn't pray. Hey, that's my brother! Let's not forget people write their lives for them instead of let us live life, look at twitter or facebook everyone is famous and they always want life advice instead of letting us live life, letting us make mistakes and learn from them or have parents teaching them to us, if that isn't bad enough I know a generation will come along and destroy everything claiming it goes against Islam trying to ban history like with Nazi book burnings I just know it. This all adds up. If I knew this was under control, I would tell you but I don't get that sense at all.

I'm aware that I'm jumping subjects here because the factors in Europe are coming at once which we might see its downfall. Possibly, being told by each Abrahamic faith that you are holy, this is the enemy will do damage to people where a war will break out between each faith. If not, what could happen is that a generation will come along and leave Christianity and Islam because they don't want to pray or heck in my intro that yes people will use religion as narrative. Isn't it also believable that someday Sheikh's will be lazy when Islam requires years of studying? Sheikhs have to be wise, it is not wise spamming Twitter with activism other material, all of the good information which I have provided to you will become lost; I I don't need to bet on it in the future. A scholar should not have 4,000 tweets on Twitter mixed in with how they feel they can be better treated in society. Don't get me wrong, some of them are fine, but there is just too many which block out the important information passed on by one of them. Do I need to remind people there are no scholars meeting and discussing what should be taught to the youth? These scholars are going to run your life; they are dangerous; they will shut off your brain as if it isn't enough to avoid influence whoever is voted president. If I had known about this, I would have never converted and been a Christian my whole life. All of this information being provided should be given after providing us with supporting Iran, Syria, Yemen, Lebanon, Palestine, and Iraq! One problem that cannot be overlooked is that it is too easy to be an "Islamic scholar", anyone can study hadith's and become this "scholar" but again the question remains do they support these countries or not. The problem I see is that Mufti's seem to have world views about "justice" in countries where there is none to be found there is no way of reforming America. Meanwhile we have Wahhabists adding in false hadith's which I will get to later. If knowledge that gets passed on is incorrect then the religion will distort itself, Sheikh's already have to be talented to teach Islam. Islam is not supposed to be a religion where everyone understands it fully, it is not a religion where it can be taught, it has to be studied by the reader or else they will not understand the material inside of the Quran and hadith's. Don't forget that the majority will go on without questioning which Islam is correct which is the most concerning factor since the youth have to be taught the religion, if it isn't taught correct than our Lord could end the earth. I also see a split between different Islamic flags; it is too much work to repair. We know that taqqiya is allowed within Islam, Muslims get painted as liars; this is bad because people will teach the Islamic faith as being dishonest for material such as businesses. Having two practices on Sharia I know will cause more division and more splitting between groups, Muhammad got it right that his Ummah would someday split. The question will emerge why is he so negative? Anyone can fall victim of this, I don't have to explain where I stand on this matter when it is called "politics" when attempting to repair a Mosque. All I'm doing is reporting where we are at with Islam. Prophets were sent to the earth because we humans would make errors when writing the Quran, if you didn't think that factor is the key to all of religious studying. We know have the truth from Muhammad because once we hit puberty, we can lose our vigor, we don't have to care and we don't know why people do or do not care at any age, when it says much wine will be drunk, we know that could be disastrous for us humans. I now see "scholars" issuing fatwa's over material that may be questioned only for the fact it was not in Arabia during the 6th century like condemning red lipstick on women, my brain says "good job" forgetting that we didn't fact check it first bear in mind I'm a Mufti if enough people don't speak up against that, it is an issue that is already straying from knowledge this is worthless information it borderlines gossip, we know we cannot keep adding material since we don't subtract other material that we know to be false or senseless. Don't get me wrong, we needed fatwa's on new material that was released in the last 100 years, but aren't we done? Are we going to keep adding and subtracting and debating whatever is on the shelves? I already know this can and I believe will get distorted since there are books that are haram, if I were to tell people that and give them by list, they will start adding to it to the point we can't read any books, we shouldn't censor the world around us but that is what the Saud's try for. No doubt Islam will be viewed as something strange in End Times, a prophecy given to us in the hadith's. No one gets approved as a scholar; this is very serious the sentence before that was to show one issue that will distort Islam. This matters in every Muslim country, in the Arab countries they cannot have wars that do not cease between Sunni's, Shia's, and Christians that will divide people further where they will all be treated as an enemy of Islam, neighboring countries will wage war on them, they don't know which one to support be it the Sunni's or the Saud's, more sects will emerge which is tragic. These people will think and feel the same, I could be wrong but Islam isn't the center of their lives it is what they do, they are kept safe some false fatwa's. We've seen the damage in Saudi Arabia where the majority isn't capable of any thought at all; they won't question anything this is the bigger of the two issues. Is it difficult to believe humanity will get the dumbest of all to walk the face of the earth in some generation when Muhammad says loss of knowledge for an End Time sign? This is to warn people, who is this to warn when we don't have indication of End Times signs? Many of these countries do not know the world will end. Many people keep leaving faith or quitting the Salat, it makes me wonder why they would warn us if not just for the scholars alone; we will just see decline after decline in each generation I believe where there is less effort, this isn't to criticize people but to show what is happening. A secret here is that the amount of work these people had to put in to be Muhammad's companion was ridiculous, if it wasn't work, it was charity; we can't keep having generations that are the opposite of this. Why do you think Allah has Christian and Islamic colleges where people are required to learn material? I can't confirm it, but I'm very certain we are judged based on our knowledge; this is a boost for them. We know the world won't contribute to better material, we were given life for work and knowledge; the world can have no purpose outside of this. This is reality; it is the truth of life why else do we repent for our sins and we are told time is the most important factor on this earth? If people don't use faith, of course the world will end, why bother having Mosques? We already know if we don't care about Palestine or each other (not by design but by accident) then where will faith go? When we have groups like the Muslim Brotherhood, we take steps back, the world can survive rebellious generations like the Young Turks and the Soviets, but it cannot survive people who lose all knowledge; that is the most dangerous of all. They might begin defining the Abrahamic faiths they've already explained who we are as people and what upsets us which I spoke about before. I feel they are just informing us look this is going to fail where this is just too much work for Allah, the alternative is that people know Islam is not to unite the earth? We have to have differences if not in faith; why else would we have borders in countries? I read Islam as you have to accept these realities of laws, that is a side note that faith is never peaceful and that there will always be an enemy of Islam. All the while a generation will come and ruin the earth. No one understands that someone somewhere is supposed to hate this, it is reality. I never viewed it as a benefit to be called a racist for simply living in America, without critics we have no purpose and no identity at all. Islam will no doubt collapse from within as we've seen money have a terrible effect on people where knowledge is no longer a focus. There are many concerns for the earth; no one is asking us what we do on the weekends. Why was Prophet Muhammad sent, why does Sharia Law exist? To divide the earth, complete the religion, to explain that life is pass or fail with Cain and Abel, and to make judicial laws seem out of date. Do you want me to lie about the reason of religion? My theory is humans abuse free will too war look at the Yemen War food blockade all of the dead children are getting the highest level of Paradise. I believe that humans abuse God. Whatever these people had done the joke is on them so we have to explain this to innocent people since explaining to these people that they will burn in the lowest depth of Hell does not stop these events from happening.

You and I can't be fooled, we know why religious beliefs are taught; the Iraq War did not end. It was not forgotten, so instead humans are taught "peaceful" Islam in many countries which can be viewed as either a slap in the face where US soldiers who think they are after Muslim after reading five verses get shipped or a positive that many Mosques are built in America. This isn't owned by us, it is owned by Allah, while these converts may feel it applies to them, the faith does not. We as Muslims apply to Islam, one of many rough realities you will find in this book. So much happens on this earth that we don't see or hear about added to history and the future where I believe the earth is going in phases which you will see me try to get at. There is an understanding of this earth that was already written down dating back to Hinduism, people would look at you stupid but why is it society ran better hundreds of years ago? Is it possible we are pushing away from scripture? I've concluded religious beliefs are on this earth so we don't write it our own way since many of us hate each other to begin with since the rest of us just walk out the door when they meet strange people at a religious center. There's already a range of IQ levels, arguments, and worst of all people perverting faith. Whatever division there is on this earth, there would be even more if I made my own house of worship. Let's suppose also you knew all of history, who was hijacking Islam, and all of religion, this overlooks the fact that people don't like Islam. What goes on here isn't a debate of back and forth and what go to what caters their feelings generally. The ones who are born into religion they aren't going to care usually, there is also an intellectual war which is lost. The majority know Muslims as "people" they get their own opinion which is wrong; all religions teach us how to think. The truth being the majority don't talk or associate with you if you're not Muslim, there's no Sharia Law takeover but now we are at the same point where the majority already hate Islam. We don't live in Indonesia where Islam is the culture; this is reality for many of us. Thankfully the FBI doesn't care; you're one person, I was lucky enough to show them their false beliefs by way of my facebook posts which I had handed them in person. We know for a fact America isn't this "force for good" having over twenty five coup attempts in the last seventy years, it wasn't colonialism either, they leave countries in worse states than before look at Yemen. Wars cost too much so that is also out of the question where it is for oil reserves in countries that don't have any. Considering they already had NATO, one would wonder if they were trying for world domination, this would indicate such. The populations always want justice, but whose justice? We all have our own understanding of justice, I've been against democracy my whole life for this exact reason; it is always in every country too much work to share material the public had no clue of. An example of this is Ukraine where there is a divide to separate Ukrainian civilians who don't agree with how their country is being run. I will let you in on a secret, what they are attempting to be the whole world on their side; it won't work since the earth will have at least one regime that opposes freemasonry, Catholicism, and Donmeh Judaism. Back at home in Europe, the Muslims going in will be taught false doctrine for Islam; it takes years to make someone knowledgeable of the religion. Unfortunately, Islam is being distorted. Everyone has to hold tight and sit back to watch the earth fail. Between the false hadith's, criticism of Islam being silenced, and "Sharia Law" being treated as something incompatible with the West, this will end badly; we just don't know when it will. For those who question why we are Islamic, simply put we cannot leave at this point. If I were atheist, I would have already defected from America since building a "third temple" would be a waste of taxpayer dollars. It bothers me that people are atheist, don't they ask why America does this instead of have me explain this is to get us to a Final Day? If you believe the third temple will work and there are signs of it because of Israel's creation than you're on to something where I don't think a nation could be created by stealing land, yes it is possible but not all throughout the earth maybe 20% of it I estimate. I have heard countless criticism of Islam and I don't get it, I don't consider any of the practices in Islam to be inhumane. We cannot or will not leave for for Christianity to try to keep Syria safe for instance. Think, what if we were Christians? America is attacking Syria and no one questions it, this is a country that loves and claims Christianity, what if we claimed it as our own? They will tell you that they adore Christianity where it has "no flaws", many countries in parts of the world agree. It cannot be an error that Islam conquered much of the earth by using the sword despite the fact that people in Muslim countries want Islam and what was before it was not lawful at all with the false Animism religion where their brains were not turned on. People claim that Islam was the only religion that tried to conquer the world; this is false all religions have tried this such as the Byzantine Empire. Isn't also strange that Muslims are painted as idiots but after studying the Quran and reading in their cultures it is fine? I'm someone who believes there is always a reason, it is all by design. As far as to why so many people in the West ruin Allah's word when we are taught you don't pray you are a disbeliever or do not study the Bible I will never know. It baffles me that people have tattoos and have five minutes worth of biblical knowledge and can still claim faith. If it isn't clear enough I would never be a Prophet. Suppose it were peaceful, what was the Iraq War, a "mistake"? A pacifistic society cannot prevent an invasion nor would it prevent me from protecting my homeland. People may wonder why such a violent religion with beliefs that go against the west is set to be the number one religion in the world. They fail to look at what the religion bans such as pork, playing chess, alcohol, cussing, gambling, dogs, traveling, gossip, and in many instances talking to women or people of other faiths. What also must be brought up is how if you are in a Christian you're viewed as living in the dark ages, in Islam you're treated as more backwards, humans need laws but the way these religions were delivered do not tell us such, instead you will find countless posts on the internet bashing maybe five or six verses. We get a sense a generation will leave Islam, we don't know when. I'm aware that the hijab and religious clothing are by design so whenever I see it I realize that this is our "team", they are reminded that this is the thing we don't like. We now know that Sharia Law was invented knowing freedom of speech would be, I can only imagine how proud the founding fathers would be of today's America. I can bring up the Crusades but what good does that do when people are attached to their Christian faith? The truth is the line between good and evil is now blurred for the majority, they know these are laws but these are laws they do not want which is a shame for what was once peace for 1400 years. The more people jailed, the more people banned from Twitter the more hate crimes against Muslims or Christians vise versa the worse the world will get because everyone is the good guy no one will call out their own team. You the reader will understand that this is all we got for knowledge and laws without it what is the earth? People hate the Muslim faith but do you know why religion will always win despite people who do believe in Abrahamic faiths but denounce them? Children, it is all about protecting children from a world around them where priests and imams keep telling them they are the hero, if atheism were correct I wouldn't care I could keep condemning the same countries not understanding religion is solely responsible for these people instead it becomes a difficult pill to swallow. I've met Muslims before you get the religions happy not yours I can't explain it where the enthusiasm gets removed from you once you take shahada. I don't have years and years to study this but I can prove it to you, it will become more and more difficult to get us into Paradise. We know religion will get ruined since some take it very serious and others don't understand the world around them. It is no longer about who is right and who is wrong; we are all "right". I doubt people even live any more, ever since the smart phone was invented human interaction died, now we are all political and offended the next generations may never know what life is. They hate what they don't understand, they can't appreciate anything that is being honest it is only what caters to them or offends them. Is religion to offend us, or to help us? Our lives are valuable I care not if someone disagrees with me. I'm making the case this is all we have left but we cannot see it. If we don't feel anything, if we can't think that's it for humanity. This is all I'm known as is a Muslim and that is where the world is headed. That should convince you religion is correct since that is all people see in me is Muslim or not forgetting all of the philosophers and historical figures who existed in the past it makes as much sense as talking about the same verses in scripture instead of fact checking what each verse is claiming in each holy book, or letting people into America who don't support it but hey that's life all they got out of this is Sharia Law for those who aren't Islamic is that I'm trying to advance a political cause by using taqiyya do you really believe the world should continue? I won't use their names but they all have great fan bases where they talk about the same material every day which is either knowledge we already knew or gossip. I also won't name the people who leave the Islamic faith since we now know they work for the Zionists; I sure would have picked Islam up here in America where I am taught how to think in this religion.

There is a reason beyond explaining the truth to those who want it; this is about us, not those who have done wrong on this earth. Now that you have this information, you need to know that you must keep up prayers; it may not be fun but heck it is worth the cost in Paradise. I'm also not condemning you, I've read plenty of reports I don't agree with that I don't need to mention; this is where you start in faith. I already have respect for you but the truth is what we need faith on earth, if this the only important part of this entire book. We don't live political lives nor are we in deeply religious countries; no matter what you get from this I wish you well in life, I thank you for believing me that this is all possible when I study the life of Aisha and see how spread dedicated her entire life to spreading the religion of Islam. We don't have an image for this but if you think of it, look at how Communism spread, the same thing had happened with Islam, when they claim religion while it worked and it is a big deal because both had done it for a reason. The reality will always be there, Allah could not give us a Prophet in today's earth to show that the Prophet did not sin or give laws for material of today like cars on top of provide us with perfect economics. Sometimes this is difficult to believe, but know that much of the dispute came in and that's why laws were disputed over on top of the fact that Muhammad passed away, the society would be lost at some point on top of the fact Muhammad's companions cannot work with every individual after their deaths. If you still struggle with this, Muhammad tells us how our brains function for instance veganism isn't normal that's why we are taught Halal slaughter. He also explains sin to us to show why people would wage war on Islam. If that still isn't enough, Muhammad speaks of a Final Day, either you are calling him a liar to claim that or wrong like the rest of us at this point we know Muhammad wasn't delusional since most of us believe this is absolutely possible regardless if it is written that one man will look after fifty women. A lot of the people on this earth are not good or don't care about others, this may be blunt but it is the truth since after all these people are wise enough to follow what is happening in the earth. I could go on forever about how drugs have wrecked someone's brain that did care and now does not. I'm not asking how the person got there as I point one million times but to show there are all these factors where if Muhammad says that a generation will come along that is so awful they are unbearable for the earth, it all of a sudden becomes possible since these same people will not condemn their sons or daughters for being disrespectful. Your only job is to care on this earth whereas now you cannot be evil as I've shown many people do not care nor think. If you are really deep with this, we cannot go back to tribes for problems in the earth like South Africa where you can get killed for your skin color, either look the other way, move, or make sense of South Africa. As if we are not convinced this is not our earth, plenty of good people on this earth, that isn't how it works. We don't steal, we don't cheat, we don't lie, we are "heroes" or we keep society up, we are not great humans. Everything we see right in front of us is a reality that we cost money, I did not see you spend all of your time at a church nor did I see you sell all of your possessions. What we know to be controversial is not, it is actually evil, now that we figured out that America being a force for good is a lie, what we thought was correct was not. We can't fix better for humanity, the majority cannot be good a generation has to ruin whatever we create. You don't like your brothers and sisters; you don't want many enemies from different religions? Too bad, you have failed at life. Our neighbors don't know any of this. If you get to know me, I'm not very Islamic; I'm a politician who happens to ascribe to Islam. I mentioned in the beginning how Islam does not belong in the west, this is why I'm against democracy it is a failure where anything emerges from it and we can't handle critical issues at all like which side to support Shia or Sunni we just brush everything away on to more antifa protests religion is the only glue holding America together we can't just keep brushing problems away but the earth will, we may disagree on religion and politics in the Middle East but never how to run a country. Muhammad was sent to complete the faith as there was still work to be done on top of dividing us more and to explain this is your best chance at getting into Paradise since we have to make our cases individually. Don't forget on the TV channels they debate "Sharia Law" but they never talk about the one million dead in the Iraq War. Me talking about that shows this cannot go back and forth forever do you really think we will have 2,000 more years of wars between Israel and Hezbollah? We know both sides will never surrender, peace will never be achieved. Muhammad was a hanif, his father's name was Abdullah; it is possible that God picks people at birth. Also, these are submissive people unlike any religion. To me, Islam becomes believable.

You will never be played again by the likes of Barack Obama or Donald Trump you will know why they tell you information and you will begin to realize they and their supporters didn't do any harm to you. Why is a convert to Islam telling you this? First Barack lies about trying to fix the War on Drugs, Islam then counters him picking up people in prison to fix lives so it is a back and forth, Obama or rather Nixon made a problem in America, an Abrahamic faith counters it by finding someone who wants a second chance or has hatred in America. Whoever you are future President, I promise I'm not the last to hate the next Barack Obama (whom I didn't agree with), Donald Trump, or whoever you throw at us to divide or unite us whatever your name is. We know eventually the powers will find someone who will unite America and be awful for it, it may not seem possible now given how divided America is but it is a matter of time when someone comes along who cannot run America, these presidents we have now start with no direction as stated before it is all or nothing that's what I believe correct or incorrect. We all have to die someday; we have to die "good" if that is the right word or else Hell would have generation after generation since the west is going nowhere we can't all hate each other. I try not to tie religion into it but put the pieces together instead thinking that I'm a person a holding a sign yelling at random people I'd be the one celebrating this. It doesn't matter what we see or how we think, we have to take the earth seriously to me it is possible we could all become animals it is believable that presidents try to give us justice one will come along that won't, we need justice. They claim to put America first, what they are really saying is "we want to win this fight". They put the Talmudists first; we the American people get no share of this "third temple" suppose me as a goyim gets something out of it, we won't all be equal. They practically run the religions on top of the schools the same works in the Middle East which I get to later. If you didn't believe there was a Devil, this should be it considering they've tried any method possible to get the same common goal throughout history be it communism, bashing religions, praising them, promoting other faiths, promoting dumbness in society, activism, taking anti war stands, not teaching a world map nor history in schools with truth and critical thinking involved etc. They will never find fault in America with wars overseas and when they do, the war still goes on. Before you say something of the likes of "he's just looking for an arguement", keep in mind us humans aren't complicated, they know how humans react to certain material; why else would the media get more senseless? They know what people like and don't like to hear it isn't difficult to believe they know how we will react to what is on the news I'm sure they interview people beforehand. Most humans cannot write books on which religion is correct and they don't know why our emotions should never determine our thoughts. It seems too convenient to me that Islam claims a Devil is out there and what these people are doing is to distract us from the truth since this was its purpose, it is all to push people from faith and truth while ruining religions by teaching it wrong, Islam will hit back someone lost their father in a war in Iraq so they will hate America and the Zionists, so on top of the war at home, they still have the war abroad. These people are schemers who want something and there are plenty in every faith as you will come to see later on, they just happened to have won many countries and will engineer the future. I have to explain this to you the reader because it always backfires in some way, they either say or do something to see how we react, the Quran talks about this that's why Iran is always on the news where these people think or control humans so I then provide the facts. I equate this to chess pieces being moved since they run many countries at this point this material is fact. Also, Polytheism is from the Devil as well because Polytheists don't think, if that isn't true, it gets the same goal where Allah wants Monotheists, by being a Polytheist, this will bring about the "third temple", humans or the Devil will just come up with it. This alleged temple is their paradise on the earth; they obsess over it; that is what these countries leaders share with each other as a common goal. If Islam or any religion is what you want more power to you, we know this is what they want.

It is alright if you do not think all of what I write is factual (I would agree with that). I am teaching you of good and evil since all we knew coming into this revolutions and wars, in between are lies and cults. What you also didn't notice was Donald Trump and Hilary Clinton how they are both awful influences, this doesn't affect you and me, but the problem is America keeps trying to make itself into this "best country possible" but it is taking leaps backwards take for example Donald's sex scandals on CNN, I'm embarrassed for "our" country. For someone who finds that sense of humor funny, they need a comedy show for it, not a country. Don't forget, these freemasons will gladly leave scripture; they view the Bible as a tactic to win votes, their understanding of how to run a country is wrong. Here's an example, we don't go by the Old Testament where a child could be stoned for being rebellious but how does America go by the New Testament? America attacks the countries that embrace Islam, the one religion where it is taught to every individual as if to remind these people that they are wrong. It is such a shame that we used to have respect for candidates but voters are more about who is right and who is wrong we will always get the same results. I can't show you the steps backwards, you just have to try and think about the women's march for instance and how this would clash with Trump supporters. The people pushing these groups don't hate you, they are testing you to see how you respond and from that, they believe something better will come of this, it won't. We are far better off having these two groups instead of what they will create out of it. On a side note, why are millions of humans marching for the "women's march", do they even ask why we do this? If they can fall victim to that, they can fall victim to anything. In other countries protesting is banned, we can see why they don't want Mark Zuckerberg having a say in their population something that cannot be prevented and now he's going to run Saudi Arabia. They believe the world is not at its peak, all of the signs indicate the earth has gone far backwards since the 1960s in just about every country on the earth. Here is proof of what I'm trying to tell you, Barack Obama posted to twitter on August 12th 2017 "no one is born hating another person because of the color of his skin or his background or his religion", the key here being religion. Does it make sense to love people of all faiths? His world views are awful but no one has told him; we are not meant to love each other of all faiths, after all aren't they all different in their own regard with practices? What he's doing is promoting a religion you don't want, Islam divides the world, it is deliberately written so the entire world will not embrace it. We don't all have the same beliefs as each other, if we did, how come Syria gets attacked? Granted it is for power, but they don't see eye to eye, is Trump like Assad? No. Don't you ever consider that there is a reason as to why we have skin color, economic views, borders, religions with divides within them, laws, countries we support, and role models? The point being, whatever they are doing with Islam I can't say, I don't talk to them on how they will engineer a faith that is strict in many countries about leaving Islam. I can promise you that there is nothing Christian about America, for those who don't know, that is real bad where the country could collapse based on how it should look, it cannot be run the way they want it. We now know there is purpose to live, but the purpose comes with people who hate Islam and Prophet Muhammad, you can't pick both Israel and Palestine. Even the ones who try to unify the earth are aware the Palestinians have to lose out no matter how much they want to play with public perception of Islam which I reflect on later. Part of my view on religion is that the world is to be taken seriously on top of caring for one another which we know to be a requirement in faith. It actually matters how we think and conduct ourselves and I believe I've found why this is such outside of showing that "the Zionists are attacking us". It has become to clear to me that we are being taught that we do not own the earth and our lives are to be taken seriously, or else why would there be a Hell below us?

I will wager 97% of people from the West will not pick up on this. I feel obligated to put this here in the hope and prayers that we can learn from my past views since they could be destructive for someone much like me who had hated Obama but doesn't understand our lives don't revolve around him. Unfortunately because of my Islamic beliefs, many will not listen to what I have to say, this overlooks truth that no one is trying to hurt you or trying to impose "Sharia Law" but are trying to protect you from something you don't see, people in many countries are getting hurt and I will reflect on this later, yet you assume I was recruited by tyrants run by Syria and Iran. Syria has to make Bashar as relatable as possible knowing if Syria collapses, that may be it. People then make Islam your enemy or it just is not meant to be, the reality is still there, there is no way of stopping a Syrian War. The truth is too difficult to get out. If this isn't disturbing enough, if countries aren't "Muslim" enough, then Daesh fighters will invade and attack it. We humans need some morals but the reality is Israel will always be an enemy. While I don't wish death on them, other people will for revenge the same with Shia's. I could talk about how the Zionists mistreat some of their citizens and many are racist, what does that resolve? We don't get anywhere; the whole goal is to prevent something awful like in Yemen where they have a food blockade to starve citizens. None of people's opinions mattered, the reality is there, people hate Islam, Syria, don't care; people hate each other's denominations because of a past, people misuse Islam, or someone controls Islam as a weapon. At the end of the day, these are people within Syria and Yemen caught up in something they didn't ask for.

There is no solution to America. This is unfortunate, I can't put it in any other words how the college educated will always be lost. Throughout history people have surrendered at some point, in America and in Europe people don't. We are seeing waves in Europe of hostility amongst Christians, Muslims, Feminists you name it. Though I don't think this is it, it is setting a stage to which we cannot have. Right now, the stage is set with Zionism being implemented. We are at Stage One with most of the world being run by Globalists with protests, civil rights marches, false rape allegations, abortions, and believe me it isn't going backwards. Stage two is going to be very ugly, many of us may need faith; we've seen nothing. We could get to two and a quarter two and a half, this is how is visualize it but once we are at Stage Three, that's it. Before I go too deep into detail, I have absolutely no clue where the earth is headed or what the future will bring us where the next war will emerge. I don't understand end time signs, all I know for a fact is a generation will not come along and fix the problems left by previous generations. Is the news getting better or worse, are the leaders getting worse, are countries getting less friendly, are people finding new ways to divide each other? If you conclude this then you will leave faith for good, I promise even when faith shows us that yes we can turn on one another. With that being said, the public could not possibly plan an evil far greater than the world has ever and will ever see. All they needed was governments, banks, and media. Now they have influence in our youth with the internet to add to their arsenal of protestors like that of which we've seen with the Arab Spring and once protesters change a country, that's it.

To make matters worse, "Sharia Law" has hit Australia and parts of Europe...should we be promoting Islam? Is it just to do so? Yes, instead of going into crucial details, think on this, some people seriously need faith. We know by now that America and all of Europe will have to default on their debts someday and faith will be all we have left. More importantly, we know they are trying to kill Islam with the help of Zionism, Atheism, false "Islam", and Western "Christianity". They know our Lord will keep willing people in "Christianity" so they have to appeal to it in some way. Once Islam is gone, that is it for the earth, do not contribute to the world's collapse so stay in faith. Meanwhile, the colleges teach us nothing but deviation, we don't know why some understand religion and others don't. They cannot fight our brains with images or acting on appeal, it looks like it is working but for the rest of us it isn't. By you reading this and understand it, you've already won past their game. These deviations from the truth are there to get us to hate each other and betray our families in order to make the world collapse. I believe God doesn't like when we put the world in our hands, our opinions and views do not matter only scripture does. They want to keep altering what they create and try to halt the earth which they cannot do. On top of them explaining how they feel the world should work, they also explain how God should function by being treacherous; they have a monopoly in many countries. This is more dangerous than people think, we don't have socialism to teach us ethics on how to dress and how to act, that leaves a whole room of possibilities for humans to mess up in life. People were far better off hating greed than thinking they are the hero for what they promote I haven't done studies in this but we get a sense they will get more lost to the point the world will collapse, I know for a fact that this will be worse than knowing our neighbor got shipped to a gulag because they spoke out against the government. Keep in mind when people say there is a war on Islam, the general public will view that as a positive either forgetting that people are dying from this. Whatever hatred you foster of Islam, I would hope you're anyone but of an Abrahamic faith or else the message did not get across. They being America and Israel are doing the killing, we are not. You may not agree with Islam for taqiya, but as I later show Muslims are the only leaders who tell the truth in today's earth. Taqiya to me means lie to protect yourself, to hide your identity for fear of persecution (such as communism in America), or to resolve a conflict, not to advance a cause or to deceive people about Islam. It means the same for the counties I have listed. I will also add all of these religions whether true or not are to keep us safe on the earth, at the end of the day it doesn't matter who is right, the world needs these peaceful religions and the world needs Islam where people truly believe the world is a better place without it not knowing what is being protected. You will be attacked on account of your religion; Islam is no different from Buddhism, Jainism, or Christianity. Infact, Judaism and Christianity are not exempt because they have verses of war approval, one verse and it is acceptable regardless if the rest of the text and actions of their founders advocate for peace. Without this, many people have no thought at all. Is Islam a religion of peace? Is the earth a religion of peace? Don't the Chinese and Japanese hate each other? Didn't the Germans and French fight over land? Don't people hate capitalism? The world will never be just, even if the world was at peace, you will still get robbed by others like I was with a cop lying about me having pot in my car when a cop cut in front of my car, if it weren't for the Islamic faith we would all love each other, right? All the news will give you in America is talking points where nothing is good enough for the Islamic faith. We do this because we care about each other whereas the people who hate us care about a cause or a religion that isn't correct, the message is the same to keep the world going but Muhammad cannot tell us that, what test is it if good always looks like it is winning? How fitting is it Muhammad has many enemies from many areas whereas Jesus does not? Many are led to believe if the world had their religion, the whole world would be at peace, somehow that doesn't apply to Islam or it doesn't belong as one Buddhist monk said, if you want to be at peace than do something about it this couldn't be more false, Cain and Abel will always be alive it just doesn't look that way and yes it is true people hijack Islam and innocent Muslims are sent off to war but this is a very small fraction of maybe 0.4% of Islam. We can't leave it for Christianity because people write in false hadith's, I don't mean to get silly on something serious but if Sam Harris's supporters who say Jainism is peaceful, if we all went to that it would show that either the middle east is still in a conflict of division or it would obviously show that someone wants these lands. Let's stop and think, Islam has over 1.8 billion people who ascribe to it, is it not obvious enough humans don't want war? The truth is harsh where if these "critics" lived in the Middle East, they would be asked what we should do about this, they don't have the answer. Complaining about Islam won't resolve anything. It shows the arrogance of some people where it is blame Muslims being backwards "idiots", it makes me wonder if these people have ever heard of a tragedy before. For those who read the news and think nothing think of it, they can't feel how incredibly sad it is to read about a mosque attack not knowing it could be them getting attacked.

To transition to a much less serious serious subject, I would not say Muhammad is the most hated man in history, but his enemies from many areas hate him be it other faiths or liars whereas Joe Stalin for instance has only one, you don't agree with Joe, no one hates Joe they hate what he did. This is a different kind of hate; Joe can win anyone whereas Muhammad cannot where Islam (Monotheism) has to be the religion at the top, Joe would let you live under him you just need the correct day job which is really selling your morality. Muhammad teaches us hypocrisy that our countries are not these heroes they make themselves out to be whereas Joe teaches that caring about your enemy by not fighting them don't matter. Since history is not taught in public schools, Muhammad will be. They love their country, not their faith they've somehow convinced themselves their faith and country goes together forgetting humans in Syria are dying because of this. Islam is also the only religion that teaches us there is a point to life outside of a community. They give us the truth, but it is our job to understand why dhimmi confuses people and why people keep claiming Islam when they are not. Some may wonder you say Islam has good women's rights, why is it that they are painted as bad? Well, evil emerges or people abuse the truth to the point it gets confused. You may not want to hear that, but that is the truth. I bring this up because eventually they will try claiming "Christianity" in Lebanon. Whether they want to wreck Islam's image or sell "Christianity" as heroic in a country that failed, that's their choice but we know what they will do take for instance Boko Haram where we know that is to get people to resent Islam. All we need to know is their false god is different from our Lord, their goals are different it doesn't matter how the person is portrayed. Get ready to get hit in the stomach where these people think I'm an "enemy of God" which means they can do whatever they want to me. I can't age restrict this material, do you think on the news they will tell you that? We go right to Hell if we say we are done. It goes to show the morals of people in Iraq for burning US flags instead of wishing evil on us. Something isn't right with the earth, why since the beginning of time the world was not united and now they want to, I sure don't.

I can't even put in words how disturbing it is that one of them could call me a member of Daesh for my religious beliefs when they are incapable of reading who is responsible for it. This would be one of those moments I need no proof religion is correct when two people could not be more opposite from one another. Is it possible we are being taught something at these houses of worship? Is it an accident at religious centers they take interest in you? At the local gym I went to they didn't even know basic dialogue outside of five minutes. More TV hosts want revenue so their insults get worse, eventually the public will pick up onto this. They bicker all day instead of inform you on material people would enjoy reading; there is a thought process behind prayers and family values when people can go on the internet and rant about the news. In countries where people are illiterate, they are more alert of the world they live in, I haven't confirmed this but I'm confident that an Afghanistan person would not claim I'm in Daesh like a local police department did when they illegally searched through my facebook page and saw my informative material I had posted for others to see. I feel I have the best understanding of the Muslim faith, if only people knew the scholars and but this is for a whole separate discussion which must be explained in a later date that I am the person that sees all of scholars are wrong between Saudi Arabia, much of Europe, and America. I could be wrong about this but that still leaves a large portion of scholars. Meanwhile the people in Mosques will get less informed on their scripture; how I am not made aware it is just believable since it isn't regulated correctly who can teach the faith. I know this to be a fact because if the wahhabi's can introduce the niqab without anyone questioning it, this is possible. Meanwhile, many people feel Islam is an ideology, narrative, or their way to fix the earth when the earth should be divided and no not everyone will like Islam but we all in some way think we are the hero regardless for the percentage who is in faith to get revenge on someone. I'm aware there is a whole population of people who hate Islam in India; this isn't who it is directed to. It's one thing if they hate the religion; it is another thing if they hate me entirely. If only they knew the good people who were dying as a result of this instead of thinking "Muslims dead" to try to put themselves in the shoes of people who are scared of each other turning on one another. Though I don't feel it, I certainly don't wish this on Hindus for instance. Even if a Hindu and I hate each other, I'm not wishing for their religion to end to the point where they have to die. On top of that, there are Jews and Christians who hate us because of dhimmi status. The rest of the public won't understand Islam because these concepts are foreign to them such as polygamy, daily prayer, cousin marriage, women being less than a man, slavery, animal sacrifice, hijab for the majority of the women, lashings, fasting, teaching kafir, segregation of men and women. Islam isn't "backwards" in terms of progress; it is a different direction for America for us to then pick up something 40 years later like Hinduism. Everything is a trend in America always trying to make America better, critical of everything possible the result, more "freedom". The westerners just view the message all the same where there is material that is not necessary where we pick and choose what we like or what sounds beneficial when that's not at all how the world or religion works, it happens that Muhammad gives us the most material that westerners say "no" to, this I promise you is not by accident where other people are grateful for what is given to them a $6 cost for important events in history that helped shape the world for 1400 years. I say this jokingly but I mean it that Ben Franklin could not be more proud of the secular America today, we aren't religious at all people wear crosses what purpose is that considering they only know a verse or two in the Bible? In other section of the world, people are protesting for more Sharia Law. Americans don't use the Bible to run the countries laws America doesn't have apostasy laws, we can mock Jesus all we want. The Treaty of Tripoli written by President John Adams states that America is not in any sense founded on the Christian religion. This is senseless; we can become any religion over the course of the next 100 years for not establishing a religion here. Many times we are told that America is not the greatest country in the world for not ranking first in every country at math, freedom etc. I'm not afraid to say that America isn't the best country, Ghana is; America is at the middle for weekly church attendance, I am not at all impressed. Scripture is not American based; America is not the bible, if it was than it would be a friend of Islam. Plenty of educated Americans say no to all religions it happens that Islam has the most material that people do not agree with. These people don't see this as a losing war for humanity; we Muslims can't win all of the intellectual battles apparently. The point is we are not allowed to leave these laws, you may not agree with them but they are there. Why is there Sunni and Shia? Too bad. The same explanation can be applied to how Iraqi Sunni's hate Iran.

As I've already stated it isn't complicated to study Islam when the religion explains the correct view of the earth such as males being the leaders of the household. As you and I know, we aren't Prophets I have to tell you this because I know without Angels informing me that yes Muhammad did everything Gabriel told him and listened without neglecting anything how does this relate to you and me? If people are going to leave these teachings like good ethics we know they will, they won't get anything from these teachings! Everything is taught orally now if the scholars were in place instead of these twitter stars what do you think would happen? It is set up in such a way where all it takes is one generation to revolt against all teachings, if we tried being genuine in order to teach them, they will get defensive it simply doesn't work others will say we know nothing because we aren't famous by their standards we know there is a Devil. We know all of this is far out of our control between teaching not to seek revenge, not to unite the world, explain which countries are against Islam, and to control who is influencing people. While I'm not looking to argue with these people, the reality is still there they don't understand faith as it relates to politics and how we react in scenarios. Most would respond with "you're entitled to your opinion" or worse they'd say "that's not faith to me" when I try to explain sin and corruption or why people hate us. Then they go back to promoting a happy message of Islam. That's not me trying to find fault in them but wonder how they got to this point.

Chapter 3:

What is going here is far greater than my understanding. I know very very little besides that many people are promoting a globalist agenda and they hide it based on what they tell you or what they post on the internet. More ideologies are getting pushed along with more falsehood, this will worsen the world. By claiming Islam is an ideology, more people will believe on it which means more Islamist groups. By Islamist, I mean the equivalent of Britain First. These aren't peacemaking groups by any means and their goals will never be achieved. I'm not an expert with this and I don't know how they come about, the point of me bringing it up is now everyone has an opinion that they must share. With any form of activism, I never touch every country now has this and this is what religion is turning into. Meanwhile, those who are trying to ruin the earth are trying things like "uniting Islam"......but that can never happen since we have a Final Day someday whoever these people are; let them be exposed for who they are. They have to have faith because they know Islam runs countries that are stable, not officials they know they are fighting our Lord. This isn't Australia where everything is cute and fun with "Sharia Law" protests, collapsing Iraq is serious. They have no right to run America or the world, if they want to then they ought to go talk to Jacob Rothschild. I cannot decode your message, what do I mean by this? If you say "I don't trust Russia Today as a reliable news source", you could be saying "I go against Russia on basis on my religious beliefs". A good example of me figuring it out is when someone like Melina Trump for example had an atheist father; she was taught this is what our Lord wants. Between Vladimir Putin, Asma Assad, Xi Jinping (royal family) to name a few, I have no clue what they are taught since everything they do is religious. To quote Putin, "a country where Jews are welcome", ok? Before going further, I'd like to call out Vladimir for example, I would cause a mass genocide in a country of mine who doesn't submit to the government because Jesus said children of the devil in scripture, so that means any person of faith could go, who do you think would condemn me and call me Adolf Hitler? The historical books will insist you are evil but I could show that look I did the right thing on the basis alone that Putin believes

God is on his side. I bring this up because these people I could list all of their names they are the ones who will be judged by God, I've already failed where something gets you angry so you do such and such unless if you are Muhammad himself I won't believe God is going to exempt your behavior on judgment day. So long as humans exist, we will always think our Lord has our back even if these people aren't truthful to us with their goals. Back to the Jews, we are taught to never let these people in since they go against our governments also because they commit genocide such as the Gulags when we oppose them. At the end of the day, their goals will be made known; they are all hiding something from us many of which are pushing agendas on us including the Israeli's which I now feel bad for. Since they won't expose each other or let us into these conferences, all we have are Prophets to trust. Our Lord does not allow for a one world religion, a world map would show this. This is also a fight of good versus evil for instance in the Yemen War, they want them dead to conquer them. These countries have gone off in the deep end. I say deep end to explain it and to explain my religious beliefs that we all have evil in us and the leaders of Saudi Arabia, Israel (debatable), America, and Qatar etc have chosen evil. They will be headed to Hell, they are enemies of Islam and are hypocrites this is the worst in our Lord's eyes. On this earth, we cannot do worse than hypocrisy. Explaining evil to you the reader is so you don't fall into the trap of blaming "governments", oil interest, or "Islam". These countries are now cutting off food supplies to starve citizens to death to win. To make matters worse, they are directly aerial bombing weddings, not something needed to be targeted to win a war with. What was once providing the solution to a problem that they had created but hid is now destroy everything and leave the country in a ruin. So whenever someone asks why does God allow for children to die of hunger? There's your answer for these people to exist, this is about the rest of us billion and a half Muslims don't pray you go to Hell you are then a critic these people will be dealt with.

All of these people are liars, between the "Mufti" Menk's teaching "Islam" without explaining the Sunni Shia split, Al Gore a freemason discovering climate change, a Kuwaiti diplomat's daughter whose English is superb when talking about babies being thrown out of incubators the list goes on. This is very easy to understand, Iran is Islamic and Saudi Arabia claims to be, granted Iran is Shia but we know for a fact the Saud's aren't religious, they are the least religious yet the dress as such but you will never see them offer prayers. Saudi Arabia has also in the past banned intellectual books, I know people don't think about it but that to me is peculiar and it may still be there. They can smile all they want; our Lord is never with them no matter how badly they wish it to be. What I can't understand is how they plan to destroy a religion with Islam, that isn't possible countries will still retain their Islamic faith. I can say for a fact there is no plan, the hadith's have no doubt created and divided people to such an extent that area's will not stop these people from emerging, even if there were no textbooks teaching why we are at war, it won't stop the intentional divide in Islam and in other faiths. They think the divide works in their favor, sadly it doesn't. An example of this is that I couldn't destroy the Zionists if I tried they would come back trying to make a "Jewish state" again, mind you they only have 8.8 million citizens as appose to 150 plus million people, no one could scheme to destroy whole populations. Whatever attacks they have, they wouldn't think it's already been planned like with claiming there are no women's rights? Even if there were none and it was just discovered that women were oppressed for 1400 years as they claim, do they think the majority will just get up and leave? Nothing would indicate this; I'm already a raging anti Semite now I'm oppressing women. One professor I met did not like the morality in the Bible that wasn't the truth but the point is someone will try to claim stoning for adultery isn't best for a society? Of course they are trying something even they don't believe I am either of those two things and we know why they are against Islam, they being the freemasons, Catholics, and Talmudists (Zionists) want power having us as their slaves and they won't get it, they are divided, they want revenge and they aren't getting it. It makes no sense to me why they think their false god would give them power and then share it with them when they will fight over it amongst each other. By living, we know don't kill people I don't need scripture to confirm this for me. Most of them will be dragged to Hell, how can they say Allah is their friend when most of them discovered their false beliefs later on in life? Are our accomplishments not good enough that we have to betray society because of it? They want either power or revenge for their own sake they better hope they can claim this is what their false god wanted before them. Truth be told, I could have been a division III football player, wouldn't that have value or should I hate the world I couldn't afford the best personal trainers? Nobody got exactly what they wanted on this earth; somebody else has to lose at least you tried. I need no proof this will fail with a generation who is jealous, resentful, not grateful for anything, and pick at everything they don't like about other people. We all believe or are taught at a young age we are special or we aren't taught otherwise, I don't think any of us are. For over 3000 years, people were satisfied with their accomplishments in life. These people want the world to cater to them because they didn't get what they wanted so the entire world has to work their way, the "Jews" got mixed in with this where they want to unite the earth. Not all of the ones who join up are "bad" people, what happens is a portion get educated don't know what to do with it, they get bored, or they want to join something it isn't always the picture we paint of revenge. For the rest of them, these people are hypocrites, they claim to be deep in their cause but they don't go off to wars, Sean Hannity is a perfect example, they enjoyed the ride. Would he lie and say "I tried to be a sincere person"? It will be interesting to see how the rest of them are judged because Bill O'Reilly for instance actually believes on it. This is a real problem where Bill believes in a country that gives Second Chances, but for what? It isn't anti war to say that what they are fighting for doesn't have an end result; there is always a "concern" for them in Afghanistan, what could they do blame people for it? We all know not to fight wars that don't end. What also doesn't shock me is how they get people who have no morals at all; sure the money is enough for them. It is already bad enough they think their false god will do exactly what they want when all scriptures in every religion send the opposite message, what is convincing them this will happen? It is all written theorized mythology to cater to many humans, nothing more. It sure doesn't help that they go in hiding. What baffles me the most is they believe God is all sides, what happens when they have to pick one? We all have to pick a side whether Israel or Palestine, if they had read the Quran, they would know there is a Final Day so therefore I will never pick Israel. Whether holy or not, the Al Aqsa Mosque is still the Muslims Holy Land, they will not sacrifice it. Whether you like accepting it or not, humans do not want war, at no point in history did they ever all of the propaganda and false belief that humans were brainwashed is not true. If Islam really is "evil" or political why are Muslims not invading countries? All people of faiths are the same, all people want peace the problem is that their methods of achieving this "peace" is lying by starting wars and blaming the country responsible for it, the "New Hitler" comment is pointless, if this were true, all of these countries I've listed do the same practices the only difference is that they will collapse a country and we won't.

Since we accept Monotheism as a fact, we have the truth right in front of us that whatever they attempt, it will not work as confirmed in the Quran. There is only one Monotheism to pick from where Muhammad delivered us the truth, their faith is wrong why else would Muslims fight Zionists in Palestine? They claim Monotheism and we say there will be a Final Day, they believe in a New Age while we don't, it really is that simple. At this point, I need not to disprove this since Jewish rabbis wrote material down claiming God's Will when Moses met with God at Mount Sinai, they don't know what myth is and also cannot accept that the Nile to the Euphrates is forged; meanwhile they can add and subtract things what they think is "Judaism" doesn't work. We need scripture to be taught every error us humans can make in the form of someone else making it. Everything is defined as a law from God between the Bible and Quran. More importantly, if there were any questions or false practices between the Babylonian and Jerusalem Talmud, the Hadith's would clear this up to explain faith to us. This is why Muhammad explains to us ten Jewish scholars to talk to him and all of Judaism would convert which is an invitation to challenge him, that's how life should work! What some of them can't understand is that they believe they can lie to further a cause, if their source for this cause is coming from a Talmudic source which it is, isn't it more believable to us common folk that Bashar Al Assad has the faith correct where faith is that simple to understand? They don't think it is possible Muhammad or Gabriel is one step ahead, they have plenty of friends on this earth as if this is some joke yet had these people have read the Quran, we are encouraged to wage war on Islam. How funny is it that these people believe Muhammad is an idiot for what he left behind yet their sources are unreliable at best? My challenge to them is to go tell people they believe Allah wants a "third temple" since none of their churches, synagogues, mosques, presidents etc tells anyone! They are already convinced of their religious beliefs since they believe they believe Sulaiman’s Temple was in Palestine and not Arabia, even when shown wrong that Jerusalem in Palestine is not a hill, it doesn't matter to them. Once one detail like that is wrong, the Old Testament cannot be treated as correct when the Quran contradicts it which I will get to later. They will lie to their own people to make them believe that land is Israel when they know Ancient Israel existed in Arabia, they believe the second Israel is the correct Israel because of Cyrus claiming God's will to move the Muslims to New Jerusalem Palestine or someone wrote in Cyrus's words that Cyrus did not say, only a portion of Muslims went back home to Arabia. If they tried to claim the Holy Bible was infallible, they didn't address the numerous contradictions in both the Old and New Testaments when the Quran is clearly against supporting the Zionists in favor of true Sharia Law. Most of these people are smart enough to realize that the Muslim faith could be correct, they are by no means arrogant; they read into the faith as their enemy. Don't they think Muhammad would know this is coming? It is by design by their false god that all of these groups want the same third temple. Is it also believable that rabbis guessed that the third temple would be built instead of "prophecy" considering it will have taken over 2000 years? Could it be Gabriel's design that Islam has all of these enemies and not a false god's? They would know this is what we are fighting and all of these Jews and Christians have their scripture somehow wrong to support Syria and these people can't even inform them of this? We cannot tell them they are wrong on their scripture and we cannot tell them what we are trying to do; this is the mindset of all of them with any false denomination. They mock the Muslim faith; they are more divided than us, look at all of the Christian denominations, they don't have a sense of what they are doing. They can't even tell the public why they do not like Islam for instance which means they are liars, they don't dislike Islam. What had seemed like an easy target is really our Lord fighting the earth we live in and then these people jump in to try to attack Islam when these battles such as how to run each country have nothing to do with them. Was Iran morally wrong before Khomeini? Yes, ignoring people in Lebanon for oil interest but why did it have to be overthrown? That was another instance where the earth was wrong; don't you think scripture is telling us that? We know the world will never be at peace, but Islam teaches us we are also wrong about our own countries. What other scripture tell us every thought every way we wanted to run a country was wrong? They will continue to fight the right answer; to them it doesn't look right because they haven't pondered norms for society all in the name of an "age to come". They don't acknowledge evil at all, and that is their downfall since they cannot admit wrongdoing, it is always "what god wants" such as attacking a Syrian base during a civil war, they are prophets of their own faith yet they hide material on a constant basis. There are also no rules to their faith, why do they think Muslims have to marry within the faith? They also pick faiths like a political party as if they own the denominations or one is somehow better than the other. Often times a president will choose a Christian denomination such as Lutheran or Protestant as if religion is a goal which I think is absurd since one is correct be it Sunni or Shia Islam, you might get a better result but not much between Sunni or Shia. They also have female presidents, one of those self explanatory answers. They don't want to be told this which wouldn't shock me if they wrote their own atonement of sin meaning they will never learn from their mistakes. These people are on the offensive, so you tell me if it is all by accident or wrong on faith. Some force, be it the scripture or our Lord is forcing people to do certain things, years ago I thought it was injustice and that's why people expect things but it is also religion. In the mean time these people will keep fighting something they can neither find or control. Everything in their minds is either for or against, it has no rhyme or reason, the irony here is that's everyone's interpretation of the Muslim faith forgetting what People of the Book is. They can't understand what if that was you, telling me that my religious beliefs are somehow false, I don't need to address it but this is what I will give you where they clearly wrote their own forgiveness. The truth is they are not impressed by any scripture in on the earth, they expect more and this is what was delivered to us. If it were more impressive, they wouldn't bother fighting these wars against us and would gladly embrace Islam I'm telling you that Islam is good enough to them it is not. What bothers me the most is Muslims have to pray to Allah five times a day as if to warn these people it is not acceptable to invade these countries claiming God.

At some point they will mess something serious up like Hell where God's enemies go to Hell, but we Muslims have the same Hell as them. The only way they could get this trap I've set for them correct is if they were dualists and they thought their false god wanted a third temple and would raise all from the dead, at some point they will keep taking material from any scripture be it Jewish, Christian, or Muslim. They will keep theorizing things where they didn't put any thought into it so they don't know where the source is or worse how this will all work, they don't have teachers and scholars; they have cults. Get ready to grow up when you hear this, either these people hated someone else or wanted power so they found a false belief system, they have to explain that to their sons and daughters, how I don't know since they will cover up the fact that they went to it for some awful reason, it most likely is not power and they sell it as something good for the earth where I'm their slave for eternity. It is always someone else's fault and now I'm wrong on my religious beliefs, how? If their kids want good or not, they will not leave; they will also get people who get a "second chance" in really any Western country. Once they own a country that's it, the same works in our favor. It doesn't matter if the country is Christian, Muslim; Hindu; America is Syria's, Iraq's, Yemen's, North Korea's, and Iran's enemy. The chain is real, we cannot have a Prophet come and enforce Islam on everyone or tell everyone do this and this, not all will listen. The fight will have to end at some point, they want to end the earth so then they can get something they want and we say "no". When the prayer times are shown to them in comparison to their false beliefs, they attempt to dispute it when every principle they know is voluntary down to giving a dime in charity. Let this sink in, first they thought Allah would want them to lie to the public, second Allah would give them exactly what they would want in this alleged world to come, third the rules weren't defined in any way, forth they could do whatever they want regardless if there were real life consequences such as lying in court, and fifth they feel obligated to push their false beliefs onto the public when there are religious centers to teach them to us just reading this shows how anti religion they really are. Doesn't it seem believable now that you are a kafir if you don't pray when in these countries their citizens don't? How bad is this that most if not all of them have to go to Hell? They may as well do the killing in Syria, the difference being they are too special for the US military. If they believe they are correct, why is it Prophet Muhammad said to believe we must offer prayers? Did they bother to try it? They spend all day trying to win against us, they must have forgotten the possibly that they are wrong to attack Arabs who offer prayers daily. Doesn't that tell these people something? The worst of all are the critics of Sharia Law, which translates to God's Law! Many of these people would be pleased to know that a lot of the countries today don't abide by it to the extent I feel is best. If we sent these people letters, they will not listen like with the Quraysh, history repeats itself in these people. Whatever is being offered to these people simply is not enough, I guess we can look at it from the other perspective since the freemasons and Zionists do not listen about the afterlife. If people are going to argue over faith with a Prophet, of course they would argue over logic with religions which is what happens today. We weren't there for it, but the evidence clearly states that people did not want to convert to Islam at any cost either convinced Muhammad was wrong or they hated him. Muhammad delivered the Jews the proof and they did not want to believe him. It doesn't matter if there is a Messiah or not, people will always write religion in favor of them, unfortunately now they are expanding. If Jews could kill Prophets, these people will always exist I find it embarrassing for them but whatever. Do people want to hear they are wrong? Of course someone will hate a Prophet. I've watched these people argue with each other, the only thing that unites them is a common goal. One of them is always wrong and either of them will not confess it, one of them has to always be right so it goes on and on. It is the same thing with the Talmudists, they claim nothing is defined or hasn't been defined yet until their third temple comes, but I will believe Muhammad over them any day of the week, they don't think the laws to life have been implemented? I sure do if the law is we cannot marry more than four wives. Is that not believable to them? To me it is more believable than well over 40 million people between freemasons and Zionists who have all been promised the same power but will be somehow split amongst these 40 million or so. I don't deny it is possible, just not something to be organized on the hierarchy amongst people who already are fighting for more and more power. I don't need any proof these people would try to kill Prophet Muhammad, they can try to sell him and Islam as an aggressor yet they attack the lands that Muhammad conquered which would nullify it. They don't like what he's offering whether if he's helping them better understand faith or not. They want to believe they are superior to Prophets since they have none, but that isn't the message of faith, nobody did this nor was elected, too bad. This is as pathetic as you had thought where they will use any means to get what they want and won't accept when they are wrong. If you spent enough time arguing with them, they will start calling you names being critical of you in any way possible. It is Pharisee behavior in the 21st century; people have too much free time so they plan out what they want. What separates us from them is that they believe they cannot do harm to each other whereas we Muslims believe we cannot do harm to others. They are hypocrites; no word could better describe them as people. They've picked up lying so they can falsely accuse people of rape but would be upset if that were done to them. What makes these people out of whack too is they are always looking for an injustice overseas, what if they were wrong that there is no injustice and what they are fighting is how it is supposed to be with Christians being persecuted, what if that is supposed to happen?

What blows my mind is that these people were able to conquer all of Europe and the Americas, but for this they need faith in a false god. They had happened to be a part of the factors in both world wars one and two whereas they are trying to force conquering these lands in the Middle East. Wouldn't that indicate maybe this cannot be done considering before they did not have faith in their false god though they would claim they did? They wanted to believe this is an easy target but what religion is an easy target, we sure can talk about one verse in the Quran. Has anyone ever brought up the idea of "I don't think we can attack a religion"? Wait for them to act, they will do something dumb, they don't know what they are doing; these people are too divided between peace and offensive. They also don't know when what they are attempting is possible such as overthrowing Hussein, and when it isn't with Assad. They didn't know a revolution in Syria couldn't be done or Russia stepping in, they will use every tactic possible. Some things can be done while some cannot, they can never accept this so they elect to lie on the news about "freedom" for Iraq and George Bush lied about North Korea starving their citizens. In one area, they are caught up in lying to resolve a false belief in a war they needed, in another area they are out of control! The material is getting far less serious now and is treated as activism overseas, you might think what is he talking about? North Korea starving their own citizens is a serious allegation, and now the news is Assad is a dictator must go like it is debated since back at home we are talking about banning guns. The allegations get more and more senseless where this problem that has to get fixed at some point and we have the solution so to speak they say. Nobody recognizes that the candidates get more senseless where there appeal to voters get worse and worse. A Nixon vs. Kennedy debate was informative and well thought out, with Obama vs. McCain, they tried and I feel between the Trump vs. Clinton it can only go lower where it wasn't sufficient enough. Just look at Obama, he stopped trying a few years into office, we are trained to say "oh this is politics he's saying", what I'm really saying is now it about a vision for America how to build it up instead of fixing it. If you had talked to Barack, he would probably say "I don't feel I owe the same answers to the public that I once had to". The question is becoming for America's candidates, did you like them or not? This creates an environment where politicians can appeal to a worse audience and don't have to try at all. The hands that are picking these candidates for the public will admit they no longer try with them which is awful, even if this didn't reflect on the public, these are the kind of leaders you want in what is a battle to capture Syria? My criticism lies in the fact that they also have Marco Rubio's who are clueless along with people trying to wreck America based on their false religious beliefs, none of this is regulated. If there wasn't a war at home to get the public to think a certain way, I'd have trust in what they were doing but too much is happening at once for them. No one says "I don't think America is fit to handle this radical islam they speak of" which is how I feel at this point. If at this point we don't feel America can handle their own country, why should they be handling this? They've created problems at home and now are willing generations to think a certain way, they can't fix these problems. They don't have the solution for this, but somehow they have the solution for this "radical islam". Your own people despise you and can't relate to "make America great again". These people are drunk on their thoughts to the point they've never thought a woman's march would be a bad thing but hey anything is a positive for them and their citizens trying to make this "perfect country". If it isn't obvious enough by now these people could will something so senseless for an already uneducated general public to end their country. If such a thing existed, these people would never get to it. These people will do some damage to somebody if not their own believing a solution will come if they just genocide people, how insane is that? When has this ever worked? They may things worse and it doesn't improve take for example the Soviet Union where it had collapsed. They want to get a one world religion and that would fail. I could list all of their names and what they represent; all you need to know is there is only one path, Allah's. Be it Hindu, Christian, Islamic it doesn't matter, the alternative is the devil. Some people in Muslim countries hate the religion or the people not understanding the alternative, there really is none even if the media portrays Lebanon as not secular, at that point what does it matter since now we acknowledge this is no longer America invading Iraq, instead it is a choice of what we want. You may also think I'm trying to unite all faiths but I'm doing the opposite, a Hindu won't live under a Muslim rule, these people are Universalists. They don't acknowledge countries, if they did then how come they all run under the same banking system? If they lie to you and try start revolutions and wars in countries, what makes people think they have your best interest? They may try to lie, engineer, and war war on us, but we won't forget the past. We won't surrender to them, the world cannot be united. This isn't a blame game or picking sides, the Zionists and Freemasons who have hijacked Islam are lying to the public, that's all. They keep claiming North Korea wants war when there is no proof. What they will do is collapse a country and then leave it in a worse spot, look at Libya. They can't even tell the truth to their own public, look at Lois Lerner and the IRS targeting of conservative groups, they don't know their own justice. When they claim that Allah wanted a "third temple" it isn't true, it is what they wanted, scary enough some of them want it that bad they will do anything for it where that is all they think about, they will tell you that they are always right, it doesn't matter if you show them that they are wrong you could never show them an injustice. My proof of them being disbelievers is that they claim both Islam - Freemasonry or Zionist - Muslim etc. It is one or the other, how complicated could this possibly be? Many of them confuse

God with themselves as if they can decide when they are wrong to do something or not when they are wrong. What if we were all liars, hypocrites, thieves etc? They wouldn't like if it happened to them, but hey it's whatever. What they claim is that "God wanted it" as if it had helped this "third temple" thus relieving them of any guilt at all for making the world a worse place. When all else fails and I explain where they are wrong, well I'm just an idiot or I want attention from them to bother to correct them heck they'd be the first ones to correct you if you were ever wrong. It is a race to see which ones can do the worst on this earth. If anything it reflects poorly on us that we buy from them. They think it is a war where it is load them up, people are dying and that by someone protecting them, I had fought for a false god when these people would be the last ones to get drafted. Could I be more upfront and honest about this? Also, people go to religions to try to appeal them, we don't have an image or much to work with if I were a Muslim speaker, the speakers in America always try to find faults in a government mind you that they have no basis of faith; this is a reoccurring theme for people of all faiths whether they are correct in their judgment or not. My point here is America can ruin 80% of their houses of worship and no one will be affected by it.

Chapter 4:

There will be a Final Day as confirmed in the Quran, the Zionists will not convert to Judaism or Islam, this will not be prevented. For the rest of them, they don't know what they are doing; does anyone ask why they are the ones to engineer this global plan? Slobodan said it best, they won't keep us safe regardless of what they think they can accomplish, the fact that many of these people have ambitions only makes matters worse after all those who want something are still going to expect it, right? There is no plan, first control the earth than figure everything out later...? Do they think the world is meant to be united or controlled? There are 1,000 images of Islam; the response is always "no, we know what we are doing". They are divided on how to teach religion or deviation from the truth. This is what I believe happened, people skipped prayer; they got bored and wanted power. They picked up a belief system written over 1900 years ago where some people came up with things thought this is what I want so I will write it in. In all of this, they are claiming the will of God as if these Talmudist philosophers are Prophets teaching us this third temple! Do these people not know what mythology is? What I find amazing is that they have to make America function to such an extent and their religion is founded on no laws so they are propping up America until their third temple arrives, they know what we wouldn't accept. Personally I think it is a trap set up by our Lord to show there was no good in these people to begin with but that's off topic we can talk in person about it. All of it doesn't matter the name or the hidden nature of Talmudism, because of mans sin against Allah someone will always write religion to cater to their feelings and others will pick up on it believing on it and yes there are also bad generations who don't listen and wreck countries that doesn't mean Allah is wanting them to win by way of revolutions. However convinced they are of their false religious beliefs, there will still be no age to come and they won't take accountability for being miserable in life. How ironic is it that there isn't one Jewish, Christian, or Muslim group that claims to get their actions from scripture, but they all don't abide by it breaking at least one law if not against others? They find what they don't like and don't abide by it take for example Donald Trump who refuses to repent for any sin. Do they ever wonder what if they are wrong on faith or life? I can tell you for a fact my existence is not for a third temple, I can promise you they have all achieved nothing on this earth nor have they given a dime back and they can't respect anything created because they blow it up! Also, for those who feel a God different than our Lord is on their side, they will end up in Hell. If I don't like reality, they hate it they neglect the damage they are doing in countries like Yemen. All of what people are taught by their churches and popes is one giant lie where they are taught to "pray for peace", they've already picked a side by not telling you who is responsible, what their religious beliefs want when they claim neutrality, and are against "dangerous Islam" to quote the pope. Pray for peace is false too, what is peaceful about forcibly taking land from the Palestinians? We have to ignore the news and if a Palestinian attacks an Israeli to get his or her land back it is condemned by them. It is the same thing when I was told by someone from Saudi Arabia that people don't talk about "politics" in a Mosque, what makes this so abhorrent is that at the end of the day, they are neglecting reality. In theory a religious organization can pick neutral but then I hate them for allowing us to die in these wars, the Zionists would hate them too vise versa. Unless if you believe these cardinals are arrogant of the world and historical books that even I have access to. I had talked to a Jesuit and he purposely would not say Israel when I asked if they picked a side when it is self explanatory who he would want to win in the Middle East. At first it may complicate someone but it doesn't over time because they all have prepared responses claiming politics for instance was one I had heard from someone in a Mosque. Their false religion doesn't discriminate based on background, heritage, or previous religion; I have to inform you of this because you will see anything from people who believe in a "two state solution", claim that Israel has the right to exist, become ex Muslim, convert to "Christianity", be "Muslim" and avoid talking about the current wars, go to Zoroastrianism and be against Islam, claim to be Muslim and try to attack Israel, unite the world, any possibly that could be done has been done if you dig deep enough you too will have seen it all. Quite the playing field when it was once soviet spies in the American government yet their goals are the same to run the earth. We all have knowledge; it is what we do with it that matters now that we know why they are doing it and where this is headed. In America the First Amendment means no religion is to be favored, sorry but these texts are telling us to support Israel or Palestine. How can America embrace Islam or Muslims in the office and support Israel, does that make sense? Americans are dumb and so are their leaders to think all religions can or must be allowed in one country as if we Muslims do religion wrong knowing they don't all preach the same message. The worst lie here is freedom of speech, yes we do have it but when does the news explain that chemical weapons were not used by Bashar in Syria? It offends the pro American people so the truth it is never aired it isn't until years later does the negative press gets released, the freedom we have here is unreal.

If anyone is wondering why the general public doesn't know this, the world would side with the Palestinians, there would be no Final Day by you listening you now know all of the wars dating back to WWI were in the name of one God. It is the same reason why nukes were developed, we can't invade Israel or else we would have in the Six Day War. By me being Muslim, I've now picked a side or I'm promoting "Sharia Law" in America, the entire Christian world will not get to this material all of these books were in the conspiracy and anti Semite collection. Good will conquer evil, hence why they go in hiding, evil wants to believe they are winning. They want to control humans to make us their slaves either by way of distraction, deception, unity, or hatred of an enemy. They will do anything to make us their slaves and it won't work, some hate us, some want power but either way we know their intent. It makes no sense to me why they think their false god would give them power and then share it with them when they will fight over it amongst each other. These hypocrites will fail; they would never tolerate my religious beliefs fighting to destroy their countries. Everything has already been attempted and warned of, they won't win they just don't like Bashar Al Assad for instance, can they claim he is wrong for believing the world will end? We know the world will end because of the word "kafir" and do not make friends with the Jews and Christians, we know someone will want to take Islam for their own revenge on others, meanwhile false hadith's are being written in. I know for a fact more people will learn their religious beliefs from people who don't know what they are teaching and go by word of mouth. I need no proof that people learn the religion, they go home, they mess it up and they come back out hating Christians or Muslims etc yet aren't we both Monotheists? If history can't be taught properly in countries, nor will religions which is dangerous where no side will surrender mixed in with people like me who don't like Americans at all because of wars at the end of the day I will not forget I'm not trying to push "Sharia Law" on you we are near the point where you are either with or against us using Islam to both kill us and use as part of your awful country. Maybe someday they will believe me our Lord would have the most hated religion. For people who don't know, this is horrific far worse than a nuclear genocide, good will always beat evil, the world cannot be distorted, and someone has to surrender they will keep thinking they will win for their third temple even after it is shown the damage done on the earth when it comes about. People do not realize how serious it is that in Islamic End Times, we are taught that non believers will be waging war on each other, they don't know who is their enemy and who is their ally, they won't even know what cause they are fighting for. People will begin to do the opposite of what our Lord wants, out of wedlock births have skyrocketed, no one marries as a virgin anymore, people are becoming less friendly we are getting attacked by Zionists who want to win, we can't trust people in mosques, people are holding up signs that say "Islam will dominate the world", wahhabism will run many countries (by far my biggest fear), teens are already addicted to smart phones and people can just claim you're in Daesh. I was going to tell someone who liked his faith and was awfully innocent "we got the left on our side" on the contrary; they weaken the Ummah by teaching Muslims how to think. To reflect on my biggest fear and how I believe I've figured out the world will collapse is wahhabism being taught to the youth, once their brains are locked, that's it. The majority of humans are good but once that lock is on there is no way of getting it off, regular humans could go brain dead. Do people not know why we ask questions? People are convinced it was just to kill Nimr Al Nimr on the claim he was speaking out against "Islam", not because he is Shia which is the only hope left for humanity at this point. If we are wrong, we are wrong about teaching Islam, there is no in between. Who are the enemies of Islam? This isn't defined to the public. You can predict wars will come in Pakistan against Iran if wahhabism picks up in Pakistan; they are already importing it into Indonesia. If these people were real crafty they could pick it up in Iraq to wage war on the Shia's since the Sunni's already hate them. Do not befriend the Jews and Christians they are allies of one another, how this gets sorted out during these upcoming wars, no one knows, in Europe that could be perceived as Jews and Christians want war on Islam. What also catches my attention here is Muslims are giving knowledge at Mosques, so these people in Europe protesting them look more and more like animals it is reality. Could this have gone over any worse? Europeans want to wage war on the people who are trying to educate them? I'm not trying to pick a side, I could be wrong that the Mosques are already ruined but at least in America they aren't in that sense. Personally I don't know why anyone would want to tear down any religious center for that matter figure if they are going to offer you something and greet you kindly. Someone reading this will say the "mosque" they saw in Britain is awful, that's either one "mosque" or this has already begun to collapse.

Getting back to my previous arguments, is it difficult to believe people will someday fornicate in streets and drink too much alcohol out of inability to cope with the world since this has never happened before in history? Go read many historical books, watch many TV shows from the 60's; go look for what Muslim societies once were 300 years ago. Our brains need to be developed properly, all of the material is getting pushed away but no one notices it, if you say there is a war on Christianity, but you don't know what Christianity is. First you have to study scripture; then you have to read into history, I was not where I should be in life without reading the Bible. It is a long road to develop a society and to teach people not to lie as a starting point. If we humans knew America was failing, wouldn't they fix it? Humans are going to fight and fight over how to run America, that will fail it can't happen forever of every four years of hatred of a candidate. A mistake people make is that they leave the religious centers for online communities; that is bad those are just like minded people they don't actually like you they just agree with you. Probably not because the solution isn't what they want nor do their citizens we all want to always be right no wonder why failed marriages are going up everything is a political argument this won't save marriages, some may be improved but for the majority this is a bad side effect. I find what we are being told far too believable since there will be people in the future who will try to fight God whether you believe or not when our Lord teaches good manners and a brotherhood. Sadly, that is what humans desire most it is how we were built. In America and abroad, Islam becomes political with random people joining what they think is Islam, of course this will end terribly. Meanwhile polytheism will pick up in Europe and we have no clue what that will do to a society, we've never seen it before given today's technology. We don't know what we are doing with humans or what is happening to many humans with the crime rate going up. This is all speculation which I have to point out since polytheism can lead to returning to tribes, I never said it will we just can't rule it out. Did you stop and think about how there was a time when every human worked? If someone did go to jail, it was for something minor the offenses are even getting worse. While you and I aren't evil, the rest of the public will not listen to don't steal, lie, cheat, be content with what you have, don't overspend, people who quit religion, it will happen in every society, meanwhile evil cannot be purged. If all societies were modeled well, there would be no reason for Hell to exist. It is also a fact at this point knowledge will be taken away, just because you're good enough to listen to what I have to say, that is one person and even if I had 7 million copies sold, what good did that accomplish in a country over 330 million people? Even if you're a polytheist, atheist, anti "Sharia Law", you and I know too well that we need to teach good ethics and reading in schools. If the world doesn't stop to teach Americans that they are hypocrites and if they can keep waging war on us, where are we at on this earth? We know this isn't going to correct itself I need no proof. You also get a sense this will fail once it is organized in areas where the people know the religion we support this this is what we believe on these are the countries we support, it is absolute possible of failing though I can't say for a fact as if I had seen into the future. Suppose Islam wasn't against China for instance, once someone is told that they can take it the wrong way as if China is their enemy when it isn't, we have opted out of many countries and sadly that happens in the Middle East with Syria to a low degree at the costs of innocent's lives in coups. There is too much at play for me to explain it to you overnight. I recommend doing your own research in-between studying what I'm telling you. What you need to know is these people who claim to know the future because of their false beliefs couldn't be more wrong thinking they will just win wars in the middle east and that's it, yet the people they ally with are willing to do anything to their own public, so what they had neglected at home is actually very serious since they were convinced of something that wasn't true thinking none of this would touch them, after all these people are in America and have wealth. It seems like everything is leaning in their favor and that everything is working fine; but what if it's not? I have proof thanks to hadith's that nothing will go smoothly as we get closer to end times which could be another 200 plus years of worse and worse people, scary to think. It is by Allah's command, if they keep exporting wahhabism; that could outrage our Lord, what they thought was a weapon in their favor to make people hate Islam and use against us in war could end out against them having no effect on humans but by teaching the faith wrong, nothing is by their command and the tool doesn't seem to work. I have to make it clear that nothing indicates the world will end, along with the 18 trillion in debt we have. We don't know how this will go over, we have at most around 230 years, that means nothing, overall societies run fine despite everything that would make us say "oh no!" An indicator and a sign mentioned in the hadith's is that work will not be necessary anymore, that isn't true for today's and maybe 150 years from now. Thankfully, everything is running fine and it looks like once society collapses that's it. All you need to know is this took too much work, I am giving you knowledge as a thank you for believing me someday you will be grateful and understand the light is good. It is very unfortunate to know that the knowledge is either abused and the rest will never get it. Once we lose our trust in God, that's it. People don't have the knowledge we have so they don't know good or evil, all they see are wars and people losing hope. That's not half of the story, in Syria wait until people abandon prayer because the country will collapse people thought it was some joke as to why God does not answer our prayers, no bud it is the other way around we have to pray to God. One of the end times prophecies is that much wine will be drunk, I thought that meant we are going to party every night it is the opposite where people will try to drink down their problems yikes. In America trust will be lost, it may not sound possible but it is when it takes forever to develop humans if they don't read scripture at all, all of the unity here in America is the religious centers and they will turn into fist fights some day.

After the Second World War, the British and French Empires collapsed the majority if not all of the countries succeeded but with the same religious beliefs, this took place mainly in Africa. Elsewhere, this also gave rise to communism (freemasonry) became a religion where communisms goals were to run the world by overthrowing governments who weren't socialist with invasions and revolutions despite their own countries failing economically along with capitalism (freemasonry) with the U.N. where they oppose our nationalistic views labeling us as the "axis of evil" many years later. What divided NATO vs. the Warsaw Pact first was economics with a one world government run with capitalism on the offensive whereas the Warsaw Pact did not attempt for a one world government believing that the world would just submit to socialism with them funding revolutions, second was believing that Israel would form peace with the Arabs to make the "third temple" this determined if Israel should be on the offensive during the wars they start later on where the Soviet Union would aid the Arab nations against Israel. This is most relevant to today with North Korea aiding Israel's enemies such as Syria and Iran; Ben Netanyahu then calls Donald Trump up and tells him to invoke a war with North Korea. North Korea doesn't want to enforce the Third Temple, they wait on it. I hope you can see that so much of this is a lie; North Korea was a communist satellite who was led by the Soviet Union. Now America is claiming North Korea wants to nuke America for being "free" so North Korea at some point changed to being a satellite to going on the offensive by America's narrative. One might wonder how freemasonry runs most of the earth; when communism was set up, these countries were given the faith, they know our Lord is real and many countries can claim to be Buddhist for instance since it doesn't violate their Third Temple religious beliefs, it could be all of the earth outside of Syria, Iraq, Yemen, Lebanon, Palestine and Iran at this point who know our Lord does not want a Third Temple. Bear in mind too someone is paying for Daesh and other rebel groups such as Boko Haram or else how else would they get the weapons? We know for a fact these groups aren't contacting cartels, cartels don't have access to these kinds of weapons. These leaders they are working on are all very different from one another and the people who replace them will be different unless if I'm wrong where a country will keep finding leaders who think and conduct themselves the same though nothing indicates such. I recently heard the Saudi prince claim that Iran is trying to expand into the Middle East calling him the "New Hitler" trying to expand in the Middle East, they are always toying with people thoughts whose lives are at stake, there is no proof they are expanding. These people will always have projects to fix the region that will more often than not fail while some work, this guy steps in and condemn it. I'm smart; they are as well, whatever influence we have, they have more. That's why I say just let it be, this isn't our fight. What will he do, take offense to me? I've said it once and I will say it again; every person has a different IQ level who exactly is this audience for? I don't know the research since part of Saudi Arabia and the Middle East either doesn't care or keep up with what is going on.

The reason as to why I believe religion will not tell the general public about this third temple is all would side with good at some point but then evil will either find some new scheme or might fire off nukes. If you have a better explanation feel free to tell me, more and more people keep advocating for "freedom", democracy, women's rights, and unity the four things that could not go more against Islam. If we teach kafir to someone we are doing the correct thing, but that will lead to more hate. The fact that the death penalty is debated shows how Islam is viewed as barbaric and out of date by much of the public. Who would have thought we were better far off having politicians address all of the problems in a country? Remember too I don't want unity. I don't want revenge whereas these people I'm referring to do so if you hate me at least embrace the fact no one can make sense of America. This was the serious part whereas before when I mentioned people hating Islam from all backgrounds is just reality, that isn't the problem that is the factor that will help make the world collapse. We are at the point where the first two wars were on Christianity and the third is on Islam where they are trying to collapse the Middle East. You are either with or against us Muslims which we regard you as People of the Book there will be a Final Day and we want you to be on our side since Islam will be portrayed as evil as we draw closer to end times. Evil isn't what you think it is, yes there is evil, there is morality, but there is also faith or no faith. Please try to understand this where it is coming from, if your faith does not come above ideology, countries, political parties, a Prophet would execute you. Haven't I shown anyone can have religious rulings or can run a country without much effort at all? It is all team A. or team B. it will never change. If communism vs. capitalism was really a war of economic ideologies, this is no different no matter it is just in the disguise of religion we all know who supports who it doesn't matter if their history is "peaceful" or not and they keep advocating for "peace". If I'm wrong about this how come both sides are always seeking other countries support and it is the same religious groups that hide material from the public? The truth is nothing makes them special and what makes them all so sick is that they aspire for "peace" on the earth which is a lie, ever since WWI things have gone downhill and it will only get worse with more wars knowing that whatever they try will not work. Suppose I'm wrong, God wants to end the earth, why is it that people in these countries are devout? Wouldn't they be abandoning religion or be rebellious? People in every country are fairly religious. If it couldn't get any worse, they believe I work for the Devil I need to be fought by them so they will try any tactic possible such as lying or heck torturing people; the real world isn't what you think. They try to call upon our Lord in secret to get leaders killed which never works. They are all liars, they all need from the Nile to the Euphrates; hiding information is the same thing. If those who speak against Islam are historians, why not talk about America's or Israel's history? Then you're not a historian, you're a critic of Islam as biased as they come knowing there is plenty of injustice in these countries and their histories. When have you ever heard Syria lie to the public? I got to give these people credit they are as pro freedom as they come and aren't religious at all always fighting for our rights we didn't have 100 years ago. The Talmudists, Freemasons, and Catholics believe they can molest children as referenced in their scripture "with the designated bond maid one is guilty in the case of natural connection, but not in the case of perverse connection" Talmud Kerithoth 11a. If this can't get any worse, consider that these people are in Mosques and Churches, everywhere, how outrageous is that? We are taught that we have to go in or else we get nothing in the Hereafter but we don't know who is out to get us as what had happened to me at a local Mosque. These people are everywhere as I've put in my book, your part time job is to avoid them, the "haters" that come with the religion is nothing this is your real task accepting that people who aren't good are friendly. We have to go to religious centers, your imam, priest etc will keep telling you how to think this will not be stopped I'm more than aware of ex Muslim councils that exist it does not change what the masses do. What would happen to other religions if this took place? We know nukes will never be fired off, if a religion gets distorted around the world, that shouldn't collapse the earth unless if it is divinely inspired. If you think any of this makes me an enemy of Islam, just you wait until the youth turn to the scholars in their 30s who know nothing about history or religion instead of their parents. It is all hip and fun these are your brothers and sisters despite what is happening around us, the scholars won't attend Mosques if they are not being heard and are arguing which is part of end times. People don't like Islam, at the Mosque I went to someone said it was fine to talk to women knowing I won't be attracted to them, the majority say no with anti social behaviors that won't help, don't do that do you see what I'm getting at? Why is it also that we

Muslims look stupid and the West looks smart? I can't figure that one out for my life. In Talmudism they will kill you if you defect, what is happening in Islam and Christianity is disastrous and would ruin any faith, hopefully you will see that the world will end. What throws me off about all of these people is that they are in religious centers and I'm talking about the ones who think they have to pray to God to get the third temple, they don't have to keep going back to their houses of worship, they can go once every thousand years. One of the most disturbing sights is seeing pope Francis praying to his false god, at least for me it is. We see them all praying towards Fort Antonia in Israel. If I'm the evil one, why not tell the public instead of saying Bashar must go and Iran must be destroyed? We've established they think I work for the Devil. One day Islam is evil, then it's Iran they can't define evil. I "believe" they will say the Antichrist is their messiah regardless if they are claiming Christianity, Islam, or Judaism. Khomeini said it best; America is the Great Satan maybe this is possible, nothing wrong with their countries but it is always us that has to go through revolutions and wars. I don't say that to attack America, if anyone is on the offense it is America claiming that Iran is the Axis of evil, it makes me wonder how many pills we have to swallow for me it becomes easier and easier the more I read I'm not sure if you're the same. Their brains are distorted, if they weren't religious, they would regret doing this but they don't it shows how we can get humans to do anything if in someone's scripture it says to kill a child how I'm not sure, a capitalist couldn't or would at the least regret it, they won't even tell us what they are praying to so how they concluded that Islam is incorrect that it is about us is beyond me. A capitalist, communist, Stalin whoever will have regrets for what they do Stalin had gone to Hell because he did not love God which many throughout history do, these people are incapable of thought or emotion hence why they never respond history is always buried with them if you are them then everything is always justified. Think on this, in freemasonry you can kill someone if they testify in court, if Stalin did this he does not want to do it whereas a freemason wants to and gives you no response, they will always think they are right. It doesn't matter how big a sex scandal is it is all normal to them, they care not about their cause or imagine how whack is that? 2 and 2 makes 5, the only way you could convince someone of this is if 2 and 2 were 5 was for a political cause knowing they are wrong the wise will always know it is wrong, the ones enforcing it would know to beat you if you spoke out against it, only these people would believe it, that is a reference to 1984. This is why we need religion, for end times, an antichrist will convince them of anything if they actually do believe climate change is real. Religious people don't question anything their leaders tell them and the priests, imams etc think we are good people to our own kind but the history books don't indicate such I guess they just overlook the atrocities committed in their religions names how they invented communism to use on their own people it didn't happen today so what does it matter? To me it does since no people of any faith have ever or will ever do such. Whichever country (America) invented Daesh matters not, I have every right to believe all of the religious groups work for the devil and for supporting their countries who allowed it to happen it matters not if they threaten America, they won't attack Israel, Saudi Arabia, or America, unless if the attacks get carried out I'm not buying it that Daesh is their enemy when it is there to attack Iran. Are all of these humans evil or is it just their governments? The truth is that most religious groups are cults. Is democracy good? We've got high out of wedlock births, the highest rates of infidelity in the world, and people who don't know a world map from it. It can't be these people when they've invaded no countries, so how are the governments Satanic? Why is it in America we don't know which religious centers support Palestine and which don't? A better question is how come they always support the black flag which is clearly the Devil? This is a reference to Al Nursa Front. They are all divided and this is all normal to someone with an American flag please spare me if you really think this can be reformed this is why in any sane country they execute you if you defect that includes Israel for those who think Israel is "perfect". Humans are that lost I have to defend Israel where in America people will become paranoid once the religious leaders have to deal with revolutions in their own countries where everyone hates each other of course the earth will be ruined. What they will do is point to how our Mosques and Churches are getting divided in Syria, your religious centers will support America and the west because they believe These religious centers in Saudi Arabia and America are only intact by design, to help bring about the end of the world. The truth is that you're dumb this isn't normal that in Saudi Arabia or America you can defect, this is serious material because we are not organized we aren't even a community; we can't form our own nations so America and Saudi Arabia will never end. If you do believe America should collapse by being divided to get the third temple, you still support it because you speak out against me in your religious centers fail on your part I know you are angry reading this because your religious beliefs failed you. This is different from communism and capitalism because we cannot quit the Muslim faith or the world will end and I highly doubt Israel will embrace a two state solution or a Palestinian country knowing they have to start all over again just had to clarify how religion can never be compared, in that scenario you still would have to go in hiding. I had to mention these people, without them democracy would have never existed where everything is free somebody has to do the voting, get everyone sent to college, and of course the preaching. Good always wins wars both the religious preachers and the leaders support this or is it possible that the world will collapse? It makes me wonder if it is beneficial that people hate Islam to tell these people that no you do not run our lives, these people are always seeking a monopoly as if it isn't good enough they don't question their government or religious leaders.

The religious priests at home tell people to "believe on the lord jesus and you are saved", they keep doing this then a generation of hypocrites could come along, these people who know so much know nothing about religion let alone savings every country is becoming bankrupt. But no they are too occupied praying at the western wall, pushing climate change, collecting money or taxes, these are our leaders? Am I wrong to believe that God elected them so the world would end considering they put no emphasis on education and now have personal twitters instead of teaching history? Suppose back at home things are good great, these people are attacking Muslim countries, so God's enemies are Christians and Muslims but all of the other world religions are fine? Does that make sense to you? Because Islam says to stay away from other faiths, somehow this is wrong and these people are right to attack certain Muslim countries? Could it be that other religions are not doing things right on the earth? Because someone is Muslim in Syria, they will die for their faith. It baffles me that all of these groups say there is no evil on this earth but continue to condemn countries where the people are dying as a result of faith. All of these Churches and Mosques have to be destroyed because of their "third temple". That's the connection with God, is there something wrong with this? Are there not enough Surah's and hadith's? If we all have to love each other according to these people who claim each religion, how come that has never happened before in history? They, I believe can achieve this knowing that education will ultimately fail; they have no intent of making the world smart or religious if they wanted to achieve this, they may not be evil in my eyes. The whole point of the Quran besides to reveal a Final Day to us is to explain that the Rule of Law won where we know Arabia lacked it, God had won. Before going to the next paragraph, I want to add that Satan only guides men astray; the real problem is the antichrist that will fight good during end times. Satan is only there to get us to end times; humans are to blame not Satan he's just out there. We don't know if Satan is Allah's servant or not. What I believe wars are about is wars of how to live life that's why Muslim countries constantly get attacked because we care for each other we want Sharia Law not freedom of thought this is why UAE will never and should never be invaded they give you these same freedoms to not read or care about others it just so happens that UAE has been conquered what a surprise that becomes the reality. America unlike UAE wants to keep changing and altering how to run society that's why I believe we have these Islamic texts to rule our lives and it still doesn't get people to read for countries like UAE so this is the glue that holds UAE together from being divided. These people will give you anything look at alcohol in Dubai; I thought alcohol is never allowed in Islam. So why do people put in so much effort for this "third" temple doesn't it get boring? On the contrary they get a thrill out of it constantly distracting and lying to the public. Also, these aren't the same stories in Christianity, I thought it was simple converting to Islam from Christianity but it is not, I wonder why people leave one for another. They produce the same people, but are different from one another you have to ask me in person I cite numerous examples between the Quran and hadith's vs. the Bible.

Chapter 5:

If your political party is above Islam (Monotheism), you are against religion; you cannot be far right as it disputes nationalism this is what keeps us safe. They have to be closed markets this is why Islam does not go in line with it. The rest are false religions, most of the groups want the third temple but the Quran teaches us that you have to be People of the Book which also includes denouncing the Crusades and Zionism both goals are the same. Our Lord has faith under control as Allah teaches us in the Quran that Allah guides whom He wills; my purpose is to fill you in with the rest so none of it complicates anything. To explain the third temple to you, during the "first" temple, Sulayman's Temple was perfect without crime, or poverty; sin however wrecked it. It is in Talmudist eschatology that they will rule the earth forever with this third temple. Zionists and Freemasons want to bring about a "third temple" that is run by a false messiah however this will bring about the destruction of the earth, if you see on my Holy Bible and Quran commentaries; nothing indicates our Lord wants this "third temple" when there was no second mentioned by name found in Quran 17:7, also the Messiah has already come to the earth. It is also in the way of the Al Aqsa Mosque and the Dome of the Rock which are holy sites in Islam. You the reader didn't need to know about the third temple; that I know for a fact is under control the religious war is already won, Prophets and Angels have that covered in the Final Fight, it is not our concern. The same applies with Yemen; we don't have a Caliphate to go into countries to stop these wars. All of a sudden these critics of Islam don't understand how necessary a Caliphate leader is, it isn't always about expanding or picking a side of Christianity or Islam when lives are at stake based on countries. I hope you can see that faith is the only thing holding humanity together at this point or at the very least Arabs are losing bad the future may be bright but this will result in more wars and revolutions that is not the solution that is the problem image if we didn't have Iran not that Iran is helping any cause watch Fox News all of the debates head nowhere. After hearing my need to question you I will give you a secret, people you've never met before are locked into Islam being taught how to think and having scholars, it lures them in. They had to invent a false god that allows them to decide everything since even they will admit they don't know what they are doing with humans despite overwhelming influence in media and banks, no one but Prophets and Angels know what we tolerate and simply do not. If they didn't think they were winning, they would quit immediately, I know I would. They keep buying votes and distracting people instead of suppressing us and making anti Semitism illegal like they did in the Soviet Union. Meanwhile they are weakening people which we know to be disastrous between colleges and teaching how to run countries with their own political parties. The influence they have in Europe and America is too much even they would admit since they pick these celebrities and now all religious advocates. You have to take my word that Islam cannot be defeated even without Prophets and Angels fighting this in place of us. I have no proof things will get worse but they can't get better by this point looking at Iran trying to ban western influence that this wave is too strong and if it hits the entire earth that could be it since we don't know what the force is to bring a Final Day. They know they cannot capture Syria and Iran; they have tried and failed several times. Meanwhile in the Middle East Iraq is destabilized to where you have to betray Sunni's to have Iran and Syria on your side, it is all a lose lose for both us and them. This is coming from someone who supports separation of Iraq into Sunni, Shia, and Kurd so I'm not "pro Iran". I don't know the future, but there is no one to unify the Middle East. You can't appeal to both Sunni's and Shia's, Lebanon is next for this. To correct myself, this isn't the first time in Middle Eastern history that sides have been pinned against each other look at the Lebanon Civil War, we have to pick a side division will happen there is no way of betraying a people the way I see it you pick the Sunni's in Iraq, fine, you pick the Shia's in Iraq fine there is no solution in sight. Now wahhabism is being put against us so what is your concern is to know which countries to support, how to run an economy, the history of Islam so it can be taught properly, how to think based on the logic behind scripture, and most importantly to explain what is happening with the Islamic faith being used as a tool to harm innocents. All of these people have been exposed by me be it the most famous of all "Jews" who claim anti-Semitism, freemasons, Christians, white nationalists, capitalists, people hiding in Islam, "atheists", rather than list them all try to think on the message they are sending or if they are trying to distract you in any way to try to get their third temple. I don't need proof the world would be terrible without faith whatever message they are promoting would no doubt wreck the earth, they can't even organize. Why am I telling you this? It all has a reason as to why they are promoting it and why Richard Dawkins the famous atheist posted on the 16th of November 2017 on Twitter that he's not in favor of military coups but wanted one for Mugabe in Zimbabwe who Richard describes as a "deeply evil, cruel fanatic who also reduced his once prosperous country to abject penury. The humanitarian case for toppling him is arguably as strong as for Saddam Hussein" which if you're reading this book is far too ironic that Richard is against both of these people who were part of the "axis of evil". Richard thinks our Lord has a plan so Richard will demonize countries until they are overthrown, this will end very badly for the world yet he's convinced there is a plan despite the lies going up and the information he has to keep hiding from the public. How much longer does Richard think this will go on for? Isn't it odd too the guy who wants to explain how atheism will tell you the criticism of religion? Aren't these unrelated? If anything that hurts his case that he has to inform me of how he feels society is made better without faith. Famous atheists are liars, they all work for Israel but if we were told this, we would all be the best generation Muslim which would defeat the purpose of religion, if you don't believe Islam at this point fine but the narrative I've presented sounds believable and you will see how this all ties together added to the fact that Prophets give us a moral system but if each passage you don't like is left out, everyone would support all Abrahamic faiths. I struggle with atheism because we aren't all in tribes, to me it is believable that God had to help construct Babylon for instance that humans cannot do this on their own even if you can present a good theory how man learned how to read and write. I have every right to believe there is a global conspiracy against Islam until they start teaching bible verses on the news, start teaching Islam instead of bringing on Tomi Lahren who speaks against Islam, they aren't teaching the religion or what I've previously discussed about the truth of Islam. If the west wasn't doing such, then yes my claim would be false. If you don't want me to believe there is a global conspiracy against Islam, then stop talking about Islam on the news, stop firing people for speaking out against Israel since this is a religion that opposes Zionism. Stop talking about Sharia Law, stop pushing Christianity, and stop promoting Richard Dawkins. Anyone who has read the Bible and the Quran know these texts are the same along with the practices whether you believe in Christianity or Islam matters not. They think we're all idiots, we know the news is censored by doing this. If atheism were correct, how come every president is a "Christian"? Not as proof to say atheism is wrong but to highlight that science would be favored over it, the president would be an atheist, right? I have no "proof" for this but with one lie of WMD's in Iraq then all credibility is lost. So ban all of the science books and start teaching Greek mythology along with all religions in the schools because until they teach history or teach a world map, I won't believe anything taught to us in school or on TV such as the moon landing. Once this happens, I won't believe there is a global conspiracy against Islam since anything now becomes believable.

It doesn't matter their names, their ambitions are all the same but their methods are different. This will always be relevant since they can only do so many things to attack Islam and we've already seen them all now with Reza Aslan attacking Christianity to try to give Muslims a different image while making Christians look like fools. At that point I no longer take them seriously; there is only so much they can do with people's knowledge of a religion; I as a convert can write Islam a certain way, that doesn't influence people's knowledge or the future. They don't get to define a religion, and if they did they aren't on a common ground as I've just shown you that Dawkins and Aslan couldn't be more opposite. As with the Mufti Menk example, you can't stick to one plan, the guy is teaching it is the best thing ever when people my age shipped overseas to fight, what if someone reads this and leaves Islam? It is the same category as calling Bashar Al Assad a child killer, whether true or not, people won't leave him or Syria. Too much is going on at once and I've never seen a plan before where they tried every tactic possible to get you to like Islam while distracted at the same time informing you. They can't confess this is far out of their control, there is no plan and it would never work. They won't put Bashar on the news nor have a talk with him and Trump but they will blame him for the chemical attacks, it is like that with anything except religion where a few 60 Minutes on to the next thing. This is agreed fiction as we all know, years later it is a fact no chemical weapons were used by him, on to the next false war crime or "dictatorship" claim; it never ends with the same cycle used in a different country. Also I can't rebel against them to get people to read books in a society that yes there are terrorists hiding in Islam, neither one of us can do anything right if they tried. The world will not stop or change by anyone's command at any position. All the while they must really believe they know people's brains as if they wrote life since they will keep attempting the same strategies. They don't know the level of concern or who will realize how serious the problems are. At the end of the day, they are all liars who think they can influence others that is their goal. If they were critical of Islam, there wouldn't be something in it for them. I can say this 1000 times, even if we could influence some humans, there are all of these other factors to life, the way I've written this someone may put it down and say "no thanks" or may be convinced that Judaism is correct with its view on evil which I reference later. I believe what they are doing is impossible since there are so many different humans, but because they have faith in their false deity, all of a sudden this becomes possible when they are doing contradictory methods, without their false beliefs believing it would work, this would never work. They can't instruct humans how to think, they all get their own hate mail as would I. Worst of all for Dawkins, we can chose to think any way we want, I can tell you that a truth is a lie, you can convince yourself of it, what would stop someone from reading his book and saying "he's just simply wrong". That would be in Dawkins favor, right? He's the informative one; the religious are the stupid ones, that doesn't stop anything. His book sale might spike in the west, what does that prevent? Ironically, the material looks like it leans in Dawkins favor, but it doesn't. Do we forget he can't dispute any verse in scripture? Even he mocked this fact of me believing or not if Prophet Muhammad flew on a winged horse to Paradise. His best argument is to say that we have our faith based on where we live in, missing the point that each religion has its own message. Anything they say can be rebuttal; they will keep finding new things to talk about, they know this; only for them to get back to their original point of Islam being "bad for society". By them saying this, it isn't defined that leaving the world in a worse place is acceptable unless if they want to claim capitalism, that would become their way of life. In that case I will pick Islam since in capitalism I don't have to donate a dime! This isn't what they are talking about, but what about something basic like if someone hated America? They tried distracting people for so long before the internet and now they are recruiting people for their team, other people such as myself will pick Islam. They would then respond with we will come with something better, ok, when? They've failed determining the knowledge the TV would provide us with, this looks even worse for them having a 25 year old rebuttal them. What many don't understand including me is what if the alternative is correct? It doesn't matter what is written in scripture. Not to think we can't deny any of the miracles in scripture but to try to understand what if this actually did happen? If we knew upfront that a Prophet would come from Arabia and this was foretold of one thousand years ago, doesn't that help the case? Does it also help that we including Dawkins know nothing about the earth before Prophet Abraham? We've never seen a Muslim society or it is run, it is as if we Westerners are programmed to believe this is a nightmare when all religion is asking is not to draw Prophet Muhammad, that to me doesn't sound like much since we now know the hijab isn't mandatory nor is sex slaves as captives of war. Remember too we are supposed to believe these are either evil or submissive people in Iran, they probably aren't much like us but thanks to the film Argo that is the assumption. First you thought Islam and Sharia Law was terrible for humanity, now you see how this doesn't determine any positive trait in a human. All of this can be written well, but it doesn't determine someone's behavior. We also overlook the fact that people may not like you, so however deep that person was in the cause, well they had given up and joined Islam. These are realities America can never prevent, some people will be against America for their out of wedlock births. Whether fact or fiction, Islam is a far better moral system, I can agree with someone on that so that whole "bad for society" argument now falls flat. Let's be thankful these people don't have billions of arguments to make against Islam, they would do it. It is the same thing with religious people, it is a trap, I need no proof the conversations will get less informative. Those one liners and debate for if Islam is meant for society will keep coming back and back. The problem gets brought up where Islam is debated the question gets asked why are there all these wars? Why is it not being practiced properly, why will there be a final day? My theory is that Islam is not meant to be ruled over the earth at the same time, we are warned that we will be judged by Allah based on how often we prayed and gave in charity. If everyone were a Muslim, then there would be no point for judgment, some generations did far better than we did, that doesn't mean the religion is false; in my eyes it indicates the opposite where we are taught to be wise and stand by it. Instead we have people who blame Islam for the world's problems. Suppose America were in the middle of a civil war, are Americans to blame, is Christianity to blame? When Yugoslavia collapsed was that moderate Christianity at war with radical Christianity? I have this all planned out since Talmudists are blamed for the world's problems, everyone, their leaders, or their scripture has the right answers it is all meant to fail we just don't know how.

What would interest me the most is if atheism and agnosticism has to be at a certain percentage, but I doubt it since Mosques have many kids in them? I can go on forever that any attack on Islam does not work between who is informed of criticism and who isn't. Who would have thought we could laugh at Richard Dawkins? He's trying to laugh at me for being a Muslim claiming that the God of the old Testament is evil and the God of the New Testament is almost as bad to try to make me feel bad someone will read your intent my friend. It may sound like I'm saying his name a lot, but this is it, there isn't much else to be said about Islam along with "Judaism or "Christianity". I can talk about how honor killings happen in countries, it is just glossed over the way I see it. Either we humans are meant to ignore it, or if it were serious as I've already stated, why does Islam keep growing since 99.8% of Muslims will not do that? How can you advert people from something they've done their whole lives? Everything is expected to happen, if for example Iran thinks a certain way, other people will then think a certain way in other countries. What makes you think that? Is it difficult to believe every thought, idea, way of life, can be countered by the Quran? The ones behind it would know beforehand what the result of people born into Islam and who will come along next be it wise, willing, dedicated, thankful, wanting to have a big family. So even if you didn't think this was all ordained like me, the same people will read the Quran and will do what is in it. It wouldn't shock me if the numbers would go down for Islam if he didn't talk about Islam at all. My thought is because of the internet, atheism picks up, it just happens, people were atheist before hearing about Richard. What I think Richard doesn't get the most is that Islam isn't something people don't like, the dumbest thing he could do was to try to explain how now humans should not like it. Also, Richard said not to pray for him while he was sick, that would like if I got upset if someone sent me flowers for my wedding. I believe what we see is either to trick us that faith is wrong and freedom is correct or that you are not in love with what faith has brought us; you don't love your friends at a Mosque or a Church. You don't like our culture or the earth around us you just want to party and not care about anything, it only helps the case that you didn't wear your hijab be honest you thought it was senseless and that it should cater more to you, this happens in any country where you like knowledge but religion isn't your thing or you ask questions that don't need to be asked like why do we ban pork perhaps you did something good by not eating pork and wearing a hijab people are happy teaching this to people that's part why I believe a country such as America would try to ruin it. Had these people gone to polytheism instead wouldn't it be believable since polytheists want the same freedoms, do you think polytheists care; I don't. How fitting is it that Christians have low birth rates and so do ex Muslims? We make too much so here is the deal where Muslims are there to say we don't like your values and we don't like your way of life. People however like this; they like the Caliphate leaders they will relate to these people, Richard would know this. It is as if Prophet Muhammad picked people who the public would like. Richard, Bashar, James (me), you name whoever, this is something you cannot fight. They have a stronghold on humans brains, this is something no expert, genius, or talent could possibly understand and I figured it out but no one could possibly believe me that by criticizing Islam, this gets humans angry. Whatever you push on humans, it makes us react a certain way, we humans didn't write life. We can't plan the way humans think, an example I can give you is I drove by a lady with a car full of democratic stickers, why? How did she get to this point? Why is it when I was 18 I wanted to yell at her? You can play on people's emotions through articles, she is the result; you cannot play on our opinions which is what religion comes down to by this point. You can't even get people to believe Muhammad is a Prophet, some will think he's the antichrist because of one verse in the Bible. I'm in awe someone actually believes they can talk people out of religion in masses, by this point I would ask him what you get out of this. Islam determines the way people think it is like anything how many people want to relive their childhood? I'm not wrong to suggest it when in Dawkins book he will try anything to talk you out of the faith, it is like if two people were tugging on our shoulders one being Dawkins one being faith. This all comes down to who has the tighter grip since we see Hindus throw stones at Christian missionaries. History repeats itself if you've read the Muslim faith you're made aware. We cannot determine peoples thoughts which I've seen them try with Jayda Fransen showing a Muslim breaking a Mary statue. She thinks she knows the result, but she doesn't. She also has to keep it up and keep it going or she will fade away never to be replaced, it will never accomplish what they had hoped for. Nobody knows the future, the same applies for this. I hate how they are always trying to appear as the good guy, good doesn't exist sorry to say. I have nothing wrong with journalism but they can't define what is good, Islam is their enemy, they've ruined any chance at being good. If they want to be good, go to orphanages and donate their times maybe then I will start believing this noble cause of theirs that Islam is so out of control they need to speak out against it. Do you really believe these people are making their countries better or worse with Britain First? They are people who want democracy and freedom they don't want religion. If I point this out, then I'm a fascist like Donald Trump who couldn't be more pro democracy but happens to be republican. I'm already a racist islamophobe for being against Colin Kaepernick, Linda Sarsour, and Tomi Lahren believing that they are taking America in the wrong direction. It would be nice if all over the world these pro democracy people existed with Britain First, Black Panther Party, Feminism etc to see how other religious communities would react to them, it is a shame we don't do what these people want so history will never know if it worked or not. I believe these people are taking the countries in the wrong direction fast. This is why I hate democracy, it never resolves these people and I'm not here to bash them, I'd like to see these people run America, I know it won't make my life much better or worse. It should alarm people because Muhammad teaches us that a generation will come along that is rebellious to where the Quran doesn't work for them, God will have these people fight each other. Wouldn't these people I listed lead the charge for their movement that could go against Islam by accident? I believe so when we have to do what our Lord wants. If there was no scripture, if there were no wars in the Middle East, you have to believe me that the world will collapse somehow someway, it is meant to; we don't see it on the news. This book is all I can give you on the subject matter, you will notice how there may be four arguments made but you notice everything is happening at once. Notice how it is hard to be good, it will get more difficult I believe things will get more political more feelings will get hurt, people are always invested in their religion and notice how everyone is always the victim either Israeli, Christian, or Muslim? This is why I believe we pray five times a day, some of the people I met at a local Mosque from other countries did not look like they enjoy life and I'm telling you that there is only one path and all else is wrong. If you enjoy life good, if not then too bad, the hatred of Muslims will go up and up making life worse for many. I'm not here to bash people for hating Islam, I'm saying that what is happening might be so bad I have to warn someone that you cannot hate someone that much regardless of religion or beliefs that the world cannot work either the other person will hate us more or will be that much more worse for them. A factor we have never seen in history, people have always hated life throughout history but never that much hatred of one's neighbor. If the path seems like less of a worthy cause, that could be drastic. If you think I'm offended by this, I'm not. I used to be but now it is like the four seasons we have, this is what we expect.

Do you think it is an error they keep saying "the Prophet said"? If they tell us in scripture we are children and we are taught our brains and thoughts, someone like me will believe on it. I'm informing someone and this is prying on them. First your brain has to develop, if not then you can't think, then religion gets a hold of it by having you recite the Quran or go to religious centers of any kind. Whatever you had going for you was replaced, granted it is not as bad but you don't want it. You want different schools of thought and you want to think outside of the realm of Islam. Nobody stops and says "why are we doing this?" The whole message of this is, the world does not revolve around us, we knew that but these people don't know their countries don't affect other ones and when they do, they produce results they didn't ask for. On another note, if 40% of Muslims cannot read or write the Quran is the only form of education or thought they receive, this is all you can get out of these people to think. I'm laughing right now because the information provided in Dawkins book isn't going to stick and the ones who try to pervert the Muslim faith, they don't have internet access. Did he seriously think a whole country would leave Islam because of him? He must have thought at least 20% would leave when not even 5% do. I'm aware an atheist would say that they can be given textbooks and be taught how to read; no you've missed the point of this entirely where the Quran is what allows them to think, an atheist will admit that the Quran can be used for a source to think. Probably the most important sentence I could ever give you, humans go through phases; it is far more believable the phases will mess up than to be able to get humans to think a certain way. If Muhammad told us that, wouldn't you believe him without having been studying history? Most humans aren't made aware of what is happening in the earth let alone their own countries. I make it sound like it is a fight to inform people, but it is a reality if anything. I read the material on the internet, people believe Muhammad was the greatest mass murderer of all time, if the religion gets distorted and all people see is the Middle East at war; of course Islam will be treated as evil by the world all that is left is time. Life on top of human thought was all written down and scripted; it is too obvious if WWII could not have been prevented or how Islam didn't win in Europe. What Muhammad is telling us is that the outcome is already set. What is also believable is that Allah told Gabriel that he loves a person; they tell us this in hadith's that would be Abu Bakr for instance. We know Allah cannot have everyone be talented and wise; we will start toying with the earth, God is always one step ahead of humans, it only helps the case atheism exists knowing the internet would be invented. I can promise you that without the internet none of this book would be written, we now know why people speak against Islam; we know there are no human rights violations in it. Keep in mind too if someone such as myself mandated all religions, all of history, and all of philosophy in school, there would be no test at all where everyone thinks, feels, and acts the same. In Quran 77:46 the criminals are told to enjoy themselves for scheming against Islam and now know who the criminals are who try to unite the earth through wars. Do I believe in predestination? Some days; citing an example that they will forget when talking about Palestine because of their brain capacity or how over time people forget to pray based on who their friends are. I believe in determinism that yes we have free will, but much of what happens on the earth can be attributed to religious texts hence why none of what we can do will prevent countries from worshipping Allah. Why humans do certain things, I don't know but with religion I think I'm on to something. As far as why China detains Muslims how anything is ordained, your guess is as good as mine. It says Allah guides whom He wills, but that doesn't explain millennials for instance or who has to renounce their faith. What kind of gets to me is that Mosques are gigantic, if religion were false; wouldn't these countries do away with them instead of keep building them? Do you still doubt? Look at who conquered you, where our names came from, they aren't European or Polytheistic names can tell you that. The question remains, did you care or not? I can tell you many people from the west do not care; this is about us, not about them. Instead, many people have insecurities; the first thing they see in me is my skin color I'm not kidding so here is the deal. We also have twitter which is making people dumb. Why would we be judged? Did you think you would enter Paradise for free? They tell us that we will be tested in the Quran. Islam isn't difficult to understand, people living 200 years before us did better at religion than us; that is the truth. People act like Islam is difficult to believe, well why not give it a chance? There are countless testimonies of people seeing Jesus and Muhammad in dreams. We also know the Zoroastrians during the time of Muhammad were very wise, people of all countries had believed in God or gods, I don't believe the "science" of today deletes faith; much of knowledge is lost from the Library of Alexandria add to that the Mongols destroying all of the libraries in the Middle East by then everything of history was destroyed. "Science" leads us to believe we are smarter today than in 600 AD or before then during the time of Moses, this is not true. Somebody is right, and somebody is wrong, that being before and today so the early humans were wrong? Until atheists can prove there are no god(s), it becomes more believable there is a God or gods out there. If 99.9% of the evidence indicated no, I still would believe since to me it is just believable. This isn't something evidence based, this isn't a court. Each belief in God, atheism, or Polytheism is all equally based not one can favor over the other though but with the evidence I've presented you the scale in a certain direction. Does faith sound so ridiculous now? I don't believe evolution when all documented peoples were all of faith; atheism never existed in history until what 341 BC? The question is where you of faith not if it was right or if it was wrong, Islam addresses that all will be judged according to this. These lands that are being attacked have so much rich history unlike all other parts of the earth, am I wrong to think the Middle East is where it ends or that this is the most important land to Allah despite it being Islamic? To me, sorcery, people coming back to life, stories of idols getting cold, talking jinn is all believable because the people of Mesopotamia had documented these jinn as gods; these jinn had given humans powers until the Islamic conquest. In Europe and in South America, Christianity deemed all paganism as immoral and destroyed all civilizations history. I believe there were examples in each area before the Islamic conquest of the jinn giving powers to the humans but only in Arabia was it frequent. Of course I believe a Leviathan had existed and we have not found it buried in the ocean. I can be mocked all people want but until someone enters Paradise and confirms there is no God I'm allowed to believe in God, since there is no way of disproving God I have concluded that God is real. If worship is something we humans can do, I will always believe no matter what is being taught in scripture. Why are we taught of angels, demons, and jinn? Because they are actually out there and because in end times I know they will appear to us. Add to that people act out and will not accept when they are wrong look at the names I get called for reporting the news. I'm sorry but do you really think humans did this to each other? America is a battleground; it used to be information based back in the early 2000s now it is about our feelings. Not the separate faiths but people being wrong in many countries. Why is it that America isn't located in the Middle East? Wouldn't we be at war forever? All I'm asking is for people to be against wars, why people treat Islam as oppressive; who knows; all we know is I'm promoting "Sharia Law" where people think. Allah has sealed their hearts and hearings to quote the Quran; I don't mean to sound immature but to explain why I think there are enemies of Islam outside of the fact that the Quran says we will be tested these countries keep telling America to stop invading but they don't, they almost entered Syria imagine the protests.

Back at home the religious centers don't explain what is going on and the people don't care, America can get away with any foreign invasion for "freedom" or "peace". People either aren't smart enough or just don't care at all. Does it seem so out of there now that Hell will be filled? People want peace but they don't support Iraq or Iran, there is no proof that there is an Islamic conquest of America not that it is possible. We've lost badly in promoting actual peace; is America not "Christian", is Saudi Arabia not "Islamic", see how Sharia Law or taqiyya doesn't matter when they control the religion and the people? It is something like 80:1; we may as well quit and play the lottery as an alternative. It matters not if you don't support Iran, Yemen, Iraq, or Syria; this book would prevent a Final Day. I don't have words for people who support countries that store up on nukes. If you show how Talmudists run the banks, media, and the west along with their freemasonic friends, you are a nut job according to Vladimir Putin; I'd rather be a nut job than support Saudi Arabia blockading food for the Yemenis people so I can be laughed at for being truthful by an actual world leader. Do you think a future Russian president will call out wahhabism? So much for good at heart people running the earth. I then get told that I'm being negative or that I should get out of our country, do these people want me to lie? With history, I won't hide it for their countries sake and when these presidents insult me well who started it? We're the idiots, he's the leader. It is like kids at a playground at least those fights end, Putin is just another name coming from the same area who will call me a nut job. Because of their pro war beliefs, the world will end, let that sink in for a moment, the world is getting better with wealth and we are living longer but because of them distorting religion and lying, it must end, it is all their collective faults. The sermons at the Abrahamic faith houses of worship have nothing to do with anything so the threat will not be stopped, for other faiths it is not their job to explain wahhabism, we are all led to believe we are doing good promoting religion, most of the world isn't. We all have to go by "secular" law instead of personal religious law, Russia takes away religious rights of all people why they do this I have no clue as if Christian means nothing to them so why bother with any scripture? I personally don't believe non scripture laws can do better for leaving religious laws but we shall see if the world collapses like I believe. I put secular in quotes because secular can mean freedom of all religions which Russia restricts. Now you may see why Islam needs to be the dominate religion in countries if Christians or Jews cannot produce a generation of their own Sharia Law in preference of secularism in these countries but for some reason only Sharia Law exists, none of them are compatible with the west, all these people are against Sharia Law and I don't know why when it isn't being imposed on anyone are they that in love with their countries constitution that they need to impose it on me? Putin's response to all of this is that I'm brainwashed by Islam when he can't read sorry for believing that people holding up signs that say Sharia for Britain isn't wrong when we are taught that this is how we have to live life or face Hell I'm sorry for concluding yes for these marches when Britain has little hope, Arab countries have none there are no protests against the Syrian war. Do you notice how no media will say anything bad about Russia or America as if it is rude to do and they are the ones aspiring for "peace" on earth? I realize this goes on and on but it ends at some point, it isn't like I could write 1,000s of pages on this it will get worse but it is the same material the earth isn't complicated we see all of its deceptions. Right now, everything looks ok but they now completely own the media. Only a few will pick up in Western countries the brainwash that goes on here. These people are very smart, why do you think we have Fox News and CNN? We don't have news any more, it is like an internet blog same with Twitter and YouTube, scripture is the only hope humanity has left since they never will inform you on anything, I had to read books and study independent journalists for this. Someone I know said Donald Trump is the worst president ever; we are so informed now on what the president does the news loads us up with material that doesn't matter. Fox News has a show called The Five; that sums up news for me in all western countries. I would have loved this back in high school not understanding you don't even live how is this any different than wahhabism where I am being taught how to think and how to live? Is that the only substance to you where you enjoy this? Perhaps something is going wrong with humanity that we are made unaware of that I need to point out, I'm not here to condemn but to question like how the elderly have more to offer than those before them you would think the generations after would have more to offer than the elderly memories but guess not. I'm not going to put my opinion of religion in a book but I will say this is what humanity needs. Isn't this what people want? This is what people want to hear not all of them but the majority where they either want scholars, priests, presidents, some guy on YouTube to think for them. I have a lot of respect for the elderly but they will get dumb some generation I know it where I don't want to hear anything they have to offer. We humans get what we pay for, these are the leaders we want they all poll very well or not which is a bad sign becoming the divided states of America it is gossip not knowledge or history. I don't believe the earth is a fist a fight is what I'm saying I'm not upset I just don't believe the earth is for my entertainment I used to hate these people now I like them all not realizing this is in no way funny and we are warned of Hell and told not to spread mischief in the land in the Quran 2:11. All you read is negative material on the internet, it can't go on forever. I know this will end because all these celebrities and politicians do is complain to show you that America will never work and this is the reason, the truth is that what they are doing will wreck it. These people view religion negatively; they are as evil as they come. You are also killers, you will not be forgiven your false beliefs do not justify it, you also respect nothing about God you have not one nice thing to say about God. You still don't believe me these people will be read from the Quran the crimes they've committed against the public as if the Quran could not be applied to in today's earth we were all warned surprisingly none of them pray which the Quran also warns us about another way to get to Hell many of us are in a lot of trouble For the rest of us we have to attend Mosques and Churches like the earth has serious concerns I just know the holocaust, 9/11 were seriously bad events for religious centers. I hate to paint religious centers as corporations the majority of the population work for but that is how I view institutions in America we don't live in a country where they ban anything bad for us like it isn't obvious enough people hate God, you don't like your neighbors or job things never go your way you can just say it I will tell you the same exact thing except for the neighbor part I've been lucky. People like me hate everything we have to be told to smile once we realize five humans are out to get us and that is just enough, people like me will have children and will be made so defensive this will fail. Someone at a Mosque told me that you have to be helped through life if you take shahada perhaps he was right knowing you won't do something so awful. It comes as no surprise to me the world will collapse if something as simple as humans not being happy is enough to make it fail somebody is always there to wreck whatever humans create throughout history and what we have to do is preserve the earth isn't that the message of religion? Meanwhile the children are plopping worse and worse beyond our ability to just help the earth some point hope will just die in America this isn't difficult to believe. This also applies to you migrants who want to destroy western civilization I warn you because none are spared saying "I am Muslim" does not work. It confuses me all of these Trump supporters have to die someday it really makes you wonder if we are better off embracing Islam and having all this division in faiths anything could be better than this I'm not saying it is bad it is just wrong that's all where everyone is right and everyone is wrong I only endorsed it for knowledge purposes we can't have this giant debate the alternative a religion people mock every day. I talked to someone who didn't see eye to eye with me on much he said "some of what you say is right" isn't that a problem where we can only agree on so much material? I'm not here to insult humans but to explain that religion is failing miserably see people the earth isn't a joke nor is religion. Also, I talked to someone at work he told me that I was wrong to call out a lady in a revealing dress, people believe the world should be free and I'm wrong for being against it, makes me wonder why we even bother to set religious centers up in America. Add to that money is corrupting people and destroying families making people miserable. If you don't think this will fail, think about how much auditing I have to do for a guy if I had a daughter, first a Muslim, then he has to pray, he needs to see beyond all of the strange verdicts coming out of mosques, then he needs to know much of history it is a mess on top of the religious centers being divided in Britain for example. He or she would be lucky to find each other given the gender segregation. The more I show you the less freedom and control you have where we have to have God's solutions instead of our own keep turning to God as if God isn't aware that there are flaws in debate. Somebody asked is life punishment? In the future people will believe that I have not one doubt in my mind since studying the Quran being a good human isn't enough to avoid sick people out there. We wonder why Islam is so strict in how it is set up; I'm allowed to believe God is angry at humans not so much compassionate only God decides who He likes on this earth then you wonder why Prophet Muhammad had so many enemies I've been on anti Islamic websites I know how serious this is to set up since there are those who teach the religion and those who use it as a narrative so it better be set up correct add to that how people mess this up so bad remember that everyone says God is on my side I have not met one religious person who didn't believe this we humans are salvaging what is left of the earth at least the way I see it. Am I wrong to think that when we don't have empires? We may have countries but that isn't an Ummah. What people don't understand is that ever since around 1970 I'd say, the earth has become a playground of events that cannot be described where we see all kinds of people emerge who do strange things and whatever hits us people of any faith realize this earth has to go forward this includes the Zionists. At a local Mosque I went to they had camera set up, do you realize how insane that is? Here's what I can't bare the most, you can't put Islam in America they or us now want their own court systems, they won't do that in America but they will keep teaching it to the youth is this even logical? You argue there is no God to push people past such a dilemma? Mufti Menk posted a video where he gets reports of people wishing evil on those they don't like, this did not exist back in the 70's. Now everyone does this to people they don't like. Growing up I was taught not to call a women a female dog word or a black person take a guess, it upsets them; if I have children I now have to teach them don't shame other people on a daily basis on your twitter if you don't agree with them, thanks to a few we were once humans but now thanks to a few we are all now becoming God's children because of them I promise you the entire high school I went to besides a few never have done so an act but these religious centers produce these people now, atheists don't do this to others they mock Islam not mock Muslims this book should be entitled the case for atheism. Then you wonder why we are told we have to smile I had thought revolutions will happen this will just wreck anyways there is no hope for the earth. The world will end, we don't cheer this on. More and more people will not care about if they are going to hell or not that they have given up. This is how the Talmudists win, I could write every tactic they have like islamophobia or how Iilhan Omar makes the news every day. This is to make people happy because they don't know all of history and philosophy like you and I do, do you see how ruined this is? Or go to Britain do you know how many people don't care if they die with one or two friends? I'm betting an awful lot, they still look us at us and say "this is what God wants", there's another book the failure of churches instead of debate them I can just insist the world will end because it says so in the Quran. Before I had thought the standards were so high and now I think they are so low perhaps God needs us to keep the earth going and want to work towards goals in life to avoid instagram, everyone is jealous of everyone; every religious person is seen as righteous or better than others in the eyes of God all I see are people who would never show up to the wars like they are kings and queens. This is like if we were told to go to a five star restaurant and they served fast food and said be grateful for it, I am grateful for the food but you forced me to eat it and told me if I didn't enjoy it then I'm doing something wrong.

For those who offer prayers or learn from fake scholars, their Salat goes to nothing. If I sound at all wrong, how are Mufti's and Sheiks picked? There are countries then there are "scholars", the scholars are clearly going to outweigh the countries, Iran doesn't have Western influence, but Saudi Arabia does. I can't tell the future about when religion will be wrecked or when a generation will come along and make it for their own, all we know is the stage is getting set. So I didn't study this for five years and I'm not informed exactly on what these people are doing, but they keep trying to find injustice that isn't there found by the public. This was found by other people outside of Christianity or Islam, and then the false scholars go along with it, you don't agree with what other people feel. If these people hide their religious beliefs, why is it so difficult to believe they will already tell you what you may like or dislike? We don't mix in a religion with black lives matter which advocates for police reform something that can be debated. For me, this isn't complicated at all since religion is not difficult to learn and these people will explain to the public what they would want to hear. A great example of this is the Iraq War, they debated once it was over if it were good or not and then on to the next thing, they won't admit wrongdoing. Add to the fact many people have many flaws, a lady who called out people my age on fox news did not get famous from it, I reminded her on twitter, she blocked me for it. Am I being upfront or is it that she cannot accept this reality? Humans for some reason cannot accept reality, wrongdoing is one thing but reality is a whole other story for them. How difficult is to to believe there is no good in these people, there is something in it for them, and they are awful influences for the public? If I didn't tell you there was a hell below us, is it hard to believe there is right and wrong but if Prophets had told us, we could just call these people out day in and day out? You will also hear the same talking points from them, when the crusades get brought up people get defensive instead of seeking truth through media but that is a whole other story I can't study nor understand why that is there. Back on point, once they realize all of their efforts have all failed them, they will promote a new faith (with the likes of freemasonry, talmudism, and catholicism) as they cannot pull us away from prayer, once that gets lost (meaning not accepted by God) that's it. We are either fifty years away with a Middle East collapse (Islam being abandoned) or two hundred years away. I would say two hundred since promoting atheism; raising the youth wrong, abortion, and people leaving the faith doesn't end the earth. In the mean time, these people are much divided on what to do with trying to ruin or build up the Abrahamic faiths, we know whatever they are trying isn't working, a religion which in the future will have 2.0 billion followers and maybe 20 million at most are influenced by them. What will bring this forward I believe is a horrible generation; the rest of the public will take the world seriously.

Chapter 7:

The countries/land left that are not working for the enemy in the Middle East are Syria, the West Bank, Iraq, Yemen, and Iran. All we have left is Russia/China (occasionally), Venezuela, Belarus, and North Korea for the fight against the construction of the "third temple". Libya now also works for the enemy along with Egypt sending troops into Yemen; Lebanon is also in on it where they allow for freemasonic temples. Turkey is also run by the enemy where their founder is Mustafa Ataturk who was a freemason. What makes me correct about this is that we are lead to believe in the West that Saudi Arabia is running the show and wants to keep altering the Middle East as a long term investment, it will cost too much to build back up again and for some reason they don't want the wars to end unless if they win. They will go so far to have the USA work on their behalf, this is not believable. They don't need to wreck Syria because of Iran, let's forget how illegal that is in Islam. Syria is not an aggressor; they would be against the Zionists and America. They don't need to end Iran, US troops would do that for them in theory but I know that the Arab Gulf Council is in on it, Gaddafi exposed the Saud's.

Speaking on behalf of Americans, many of them fall under these categories: they want nothing to do with the Middle East (that's the majority trust me on this), they want Islam as an enemy (don't take that the wrong way) because of 9/11 they view you as a barbarian, they put social policies at home first as a priority, they think America is demanding all of your oil sources, they have no knowledge about your region/ don't follow in part because they follow their home countries from abroad conflicts, they are more concerned about left or right wing economic based wars (that used to be me), they think each (not all) countries and their citizens wants war with each other, they think you are deliberately oppressing all women in your countries, or they think you and/or your countries are plotting to kill us here in America. Many people here put America and its safety first not seeing the damage it is doing to your homeland. The message you and I are sending is not and will not get across to people in America because the anti war protests work under the notion that these wars are for oil or to sell weapons to your countries. I would say fewer than 8% maybe lower here support you and unfortunately some are doing it out of hatred of America. Within it, some may support you and want you to change who you are at home but they do not expect it so this makes their support only worse off. Just remember that our common enemy will take any movement or anyone that helps as long as they/it are against the fundamentals of the followers of Abrahamic religions Judaism, Christianity, and Islam (I think this applies to Zoroastrians too, you might be their enemy as well; your hearts are good by the way). This is far bigger than just occupation and giving up Palestinian nationality because we follow Thou Shall Not Kill. Our enemy needs to kill those in their way because no one would give up being Palestinian. We cannot and will not be pinned against each other. They even leave us geo illiterate in the public schools in America (textbooks, not teachers if you are reading this saying "not me"). Part of the reason as to why we do not believe them is because we are servants of Allah, whereas they want us to be servants of them as their Goyim. I don't hate these people, I just understand them; this isn't written in anger. I might never personally understand your intense disapproval towards them even those barely affected by them. That's why I write this, because I seriously doubt I could do better in your shoes ignoring them than you are currently doing and I thank you for it. Keep living your life, that's the last thing they want from you. There could be more enemies of theirs; I'm not sure if nationalists outside one of their international banks are classified. As long as they lead the pack, they will take you in. I will give it to you straight, if you aren't in our movements and you want independence from these people or you just want some power, we are on the same team. Many of their soldiers do not want to fight their whole life which should be telling enough that whatever they are doing isn't working. There is plenty of room for dialogue, I don't care what you get from it, just help us and that's it. Better we fund people who know what they are doing than get people who don't know why we chose them. I say we because this will most likely be a joint pack. This revolt will be 100% religious based. It may or may not happen in my lifetime, my instinct says no.

What this comes down to is if their economy crashes and the citizens want to leave, if it doesn't than we were mislead to revolt and it was the wrong answer. We do not want to attack but open their borders and shut off their nukes because those will destroy the Middle East and I do not want to sound like I'm advocating for it because I am never. They want us to fight them. These are smart people; they've started over five wars but claim that they were under attack or just say both sides wanted it. This is a classic example of a spin which is not the truth. If in one of these wars, these people did not push their neighbors into a war or did not start it, please feel free to correct me. Lying only makes things worse for us. We have such a case for them being on the offensive that the general public will almost have to believe us. They know that they cannot just march into Egypt and take land. What they will argue in the future is that all religions live in peace in their Zionist state so if we care about our religions we should join their side for peace but if the people of the Middle East do that, then they are no longer Lebanese, Palestinians, Egyptians you get the point. They would tell you that the people of the Middle East declared war on them for living in their homeland because it is "their land promised to them" and that their neighbors are the "occupiers." I dispute this because Bashar Al Assad had made a claim that the Syrians have the most Semitic blood in them and the citizens want to live under Syria. That the Ashkenazi Jews living were converts who lived in an empire known as the Kingdom of Khazaria during the Middle Ages. Also, they want lower birth rates of Muslims, Christians etc. In exchange, you get money; you get to live in their state, all while you betray your previous country that gave you a chance, that's the agreement. They know the Palestinians will never give up on Palestine. I'm not dumb and I see how there is a higher percentage of Christians in Palestine than in their Zionist state so by default I support Palestine. The Palestinians rightly feel cheated because Syria is not sending troops to help them. If Syria sends troops, they will be sanctioned by the UN by a claim of "escalating the conflict"; this will just hinder Syria's reputation in the long run. I am not saying Syria is right or wrong to look the other way. In the West Bank, the Palestinians don't even have a military which should tell you that something is wrong there. They also want groups such as Al Nusra Front to attack the Zionists. Al Nusra Front agrees to because they really do believe that they will win. That's why Bashar Al Assad says that the Syrian War is about the next generation, they have to be kept safe from Syria ever collapsing. These groups will keep coming back up because they have "Islam" in their slogan which confuses people who think Syria is not an Islamic country. FSA and Al Nusra Front try to overthrow Assad, they send in fighters from Turkey and Jordan. The operation fails; they create Daesh (which is Khawarij this has already happened in history) as a third enemy in Syria to fight Assad. Daesh was supposed to ally with Kurds. Daesh has weapons left over from the Iraq War. FSA is dead, US hopes for Al Nusra to win. They have the best weapons. We can't tell which videos are Al Nusra Front and Daesh since they both dress in black. If Al Nusra Front won, they would create a generation to declare war on Israel. An oil pipeline set up by Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Syria, and Turkey was rejected by Assad in 2009. This would have helped oil reach Europe much faster. Assad had accepted a Syria, Iran, and Iraq pipeline instead.

What people seem to overlook is that in both Iraq and Syria, they don't want these rebels groups in them even if I did think it is time for a West Iraq, the Iraq military will take them out. Most Sunni's in Iraq do not trust Shiites and feel that Iraq will turn into a Shiite satellite for Iran. Iraq has a long ways go to in order to get fixed. Many secular Sunnis have joined groups such as Hamas in Gaza, just now they have abandoned Daesh which is to their benefit but they still join political parties such as the Baathists which put their lives at risk. Sunni's in general are losing in the countries such as Lebanon and Iraq, we can speculate another war in Lebanon in the future with Sunni's against the Shia's. No country would allow something like this in theirs where they take up arms against the countries military, now we have to pay to get them out it's bad economics at its core. As you notice, they keep taking pieces of land from the West Bank in the disguise of "peaceful settlers". That is betraying those who died in order for us to live. This is not for revenge but to win. The people in Gaza at no point wanted any part of this. As I alluded to before, do not listen to Russian military leaders, they could be deceiving you in order to make us lose. Defect from them immediately. I'm not saying don't defend your homeland Russia if it is under attack, I'm just saying do not get caught up in Ukraine when a group is pushing forward or backward. If war were to simultaneously break out in both the Middle East and Ukraine or if I were forced to go to Ukraine, I'm not going to Ukraine and that is final. If you are stationed in the Middle East, you have to defect. It took Russia two years to join in the conflict and from my understanding that was after the Syrian government started to win. Now Bashar Al Assad is depicted as a puppet of Russia which makes matters worse. Go join groups that are funded directly by Iran or if you don't trust them, make your own. Hopefully a ceasefire can be reached including the groups that side with the Zionists groups as a whole because threatening them or aggravating them leads to war which is not good. They might control most of our politicians, but they do not control us at home. This includes the citizens of Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, Iraq, Kuwait Syria, and can't forget Palestine. They also refer to you as an Arab in their country which robs you of your nationality; you are no longer a Palestinian if you live there but you can disagree with what they are doing to you of course. This is why they cannot just declare war on all of their neighbors and evict the majority because their own citizens and much of the rest of the world would not allow it. 600,000 Palestinians are dead as a result of Zionism. Remember, these people hide/spin information, steal, lie, bribe, distract, label you, impose agents on you, and create movements to divide your supporters if you don't do ask they tell. They will shut your country down if you are not part of their UN charter and will replace you overnight, now do you see why we take this seriously? Who would you rather have as an ally? FSA and Al Nusra Front try to overthrow Assad, they send in fighters from Turkey and Jordan. The operation fails; they create Daesh as a third enemy in Syria to fight Assad. Daesh was suppose to ally with Kurds. Daesh has weapons left over from the Iraq War. FSA is dead, US hopes for Al Nusra to win. They have the best weapons. We can't tell which videos are Al Nusra Front and Daesh since they both dress in black. If Al Nusra Front won, they would create a generation to declare war on Israel.

Traps someone had tried to use and extras included:

Greed- Assad lives in a Palace, so what?

He crushed the Revolution- elections did, why should I care?

Government has too many jobs- if they open the markets up, the country will collapse by outsiders

Cannot work your way up- the country is poor.

Protests were necessary- false, the economy tanked because of the Arab Spring, this is a trap

Peaceful protests- correct, at first they were peaceful. However terrorists hid in them

Syrian government must be overthrown- no, some bold killers it would be smart for them to rebel for money. Qatar is giving over $50,000 for families of defectors. Suppose Syria was to fail, these killers would not be able to decide who holds what seat. Their greed is their downfall. Many of them are spies too.

His police shot at protesters- false, paid mercenaries shot at police

Chemical weapons- false, done by Al Nusra Front

Civilian causalities- yes that happens in wars

Dictator- false, he had over 90% of the ballot, Assad would gladly leave

Sunni's disapprove of him- false, the majority of the Syrian Military is Sunni at 64%

FSA is legitimate- false, it has almost faded now and they give arms to Daesh and Al Nusra Front

FSA should be allowed to separate- they allow foreigners to give them arms so the answer is no

Russian Puppet- No, Russia got involved two years into the war.

Iranian Satellite- Fair accusation, he supports Palestine with Iran, however Iran does not install leaders

Religious Persecution- I have not heard this one yet, he has rebuilt Synagogues and Churches.

Too much Terrorism in Syria- Saudi Arabia has grown terrorists in their country. Who do you think funded Daesh....? This is what happens during a war.

Case for Palestine

1. I can't make you into a humanitarian or anti war

2. I can't convert you to Islam

3. I can't show you Christian persecution in Palestine

4. I can't show you the Zionists own America

5. I can't show you Christianity is not compatible with America but is compatible with Palestine

6. I can't show you the Bible denounces Zionism

7. I can't show you this will bring the Anti-Christ

8. You think I'm pushing Sharia Law at home or are an anti-Semite for opposing them

9. You think I'm trying to "wipe Israel off the map"

Chapter 8:

Bahrain fears a free country where "Sunni's" are not favored; the Shiite's in Bahrain have no ties with Iran they could just do their own thing. Iran only supports allies, not coups of people who don't support Iran and are neutral because they would have to fund them by their own Sharia Law. The enemy would know if Iran were to fund them, they are not tempting them it must be to anger the Shiite's around the world. That's why they kept airing the Egyptian Revolution, it wasn't for my entertainment to see protests in a massive scale, it was to make the world talk about it they wanted a victory. This makes perfect sense because American news stations did not show the Bahrain Protests which were legitimate. Never watch TV again. The commentators on your news stations and online blogs keep naming massacres, events, unfair criticism of Islam in a row that is a chant! Sean Hannity even uses his fingers to count what he disagrees with in Islam. He also claims Iran is the "number one states sponsor of terror in the world", this isn't true, they fund rebel groups just like America; America funds actual terrorist groups like jundallah. These hosts are paid to do it. They yell during the shows, they like sports, they uses speeches to real you in (very important point right here), they are relatable, they have TMZ like shows (the Five), they have some unlikeable guests to promote their brand, and they have experience and they try to reach a fan base. What I've also come to notice is that their interviews are like open conversations, they don't allow their guests to answers questions fully it's like they are in a rush to get done, they want short answers to deep questions. They even bring up the past to use as a narrative in which I did not live in. I get my own opinion on the past don't I? Don't even try to speak on my behalf TV commentators. Sean this is for you, let me decide what Islam is and what it isn't. When you use phrases like "Radical Islam" you purposely don't quote the Quran to help your viewers better understand what they view as their enemy. How many of them have read a Quran? How many more of them read one verse and say "I don't like it" but fail to realize plenty of verses in the Old and New Testaments they do not agree with? I know these people I went to college with them and I really think if I sat down and showed it to them, maybe they would like it but not do what is in it. I can at least help them so they realize how minor these disagreements are, you the analyst are nowhere these people and I bet many of them could be your friend in real life, do you really think you would have none at all? Did you think for a second that many people in these countries say "yeah I don't agree with that either" you will be glad to know that anything at all controversial are in the Hadith's you don't have to do what is in it. It wouldn't even be brought up this isn't something to address, it says "there must be no coercion in faith"! Go look at how Syria, Lebanon, and Egypt are run, they have Secular governments, this is compatible with the West! It especially bothers me because many of the youth want to explore the world but they will skip these countries to take a stand thinking that the people of Iran want to hurt them when they will walk away if America is brought up and there is disagreement. Iran's leaders would say "American's don't come here" because now we have camera phones and you can now record someone yelling in Persian at you if it were to ever happen. Wouldn't you think it would be all over the news if an American was attacked in Iran when they tell you everyday it seems that 7 Americans are being "held hostage" there? So if these people are ruining Islam why do we allow it? People like me will ruin the earth, getting people involved in wars they want no part of that never end you are looking at a 100 million death toll because people in Muslim countries do not read about airstrikes in Yemen. If this war were to happen, it is not a good one because those who reach puberty would have to be executed, if they weren't they will hand down stories of how they were oppressed and that they need to be liberate only for a country to allow them to get their "freedom". If you really want peace on earth, find a new hobby I already stated I will allow the earth to have their false beliefs just give me Saudi Arabia. Humanity is better served letting people think Islam wants to dominate the world and that it is not peaceful according to the faith since once I point this material out, it didn't help any cause. It's all a lie, Prophets don't hate you unless if you're an enemy of Islam I'd say 98% of the world is not infact I bet they would like you despite you not liking this the majority at least wish well for the earth but if these people don't pray in any country they will go to hell so much for Islam being oppressive when you better be religious is it not a message like any other religion. Why are there hadith's you don't like, don't be silly, we can't all pick up Islam that's my theory since we know they are not unethical most if not all aren't effected by stoning for adultery for instance to me it is just a few more rules to live by no surprise written in Arabic for most except me to learn. It all has purpose, during the Dark Ages it was Christians vs. Muhammadans fast-forward to 2019 it is democracy vs. Sharia Law since the population has taken leaps backwards in knowledge people back then would know Sharia Law is acceptable now it isn't. The Crusades had a purpose to separate the two religions but in today's earth you're not fooling me many Christian groups are divided over Israel and Palestine whereas Muslims are not somehow there is still a divide between the two religions and now we know why. Bare with me here, if you're white you go to the church you then get angry at Muslims for trying to take over your culture whatever that is, if you are black you go to the Mosque and the Left loves Islam you really think this is an accident? To me it is fine that we are all divided into groups like I care if these countries were to collapse and reform but with this it is a nightmare because if you don't go to your house of worship you go to Hell you don't even get to live because constantly someone is influencing you by religion someone like me says who cares? Even the one who did the most evil gets out of Hell, he did what God wanted; this is what God wants the man accepted a Final Day forget which religion he promoted, humanity was created for God.

The current year in a Hebrew calendar is 5777. This leaves us with 233 years left. Christians have been saying forever the world will end the problem atheists now have is that I have the date; atheists have to give me a chance that some mastermind separated these religions and had to put it there by some jinn if not then this all seems to convenient to me that atheists constantly say this not realizing humans have to do these wars it is also an accident there is major divide over each faith to this day by now you'd think we'd all get passed our differences in faith yet Muslims hate America. The Zionists even got the years right for them to get into power; it's not over or less than 1500 years. It might be in my lifetime because that is the deadline for when their Anti-Christ comes, they can do Armageddon by launching nukes today if they wanted, but they won't. Get ready for "UN Mandate" countries. At our right before the deadline, they will launch nukes, I know it. The question remains when they will build the Third Temple but I doubt that is in my lifetime that will happen much later. It does not make sense to attack Cuba, it might flop and there might be 50 years of it as appose to 500. All I know about it is that they are done trying to overthrow Cuba for good. One power they have is over foreign governments is that they lit about defectors to their leaders into thinking that someone is against their own country. These people are going to do everything they can to make this event happen; they might just just let North Korea be. They helped the Soviet Union stockpile nukes after WWII, this is what they want. It makes no sense to rebuild Europe at this point. It won't get more serious than this; those who caused you trouble in the past will mean nothing now. This is a message that you accept as their end goal. It is your instructions on how to fight against them. I can almost place myself at a location where I had to shut off a detonator, I was unable to and I knew that was it for the world. I would bet my entire savings on this, they have their nukes set in their country. Don't get upset people that there are not enough people on the internet and there are not enough people will share with others what is going on in the Middle East. We can't force the enemy out of Palestine, there's no way to stop them. We also cannot prevent them from exporting wahhabism when 42% of Muslims are illiterate, the Muslims will not know about these false hadith's when they don't know what a hadith is. The literacy rate probably will not change over the course of the next 200 years.
